Unemployed Gold Rush.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

WHEN Mr. R. H. White, a Nevada gambler, arrived early yesterday in the other world, and was asked how he died, he probably answered: "I don't know. I was unconscious at the time."

Before 5 a. m. he was taken to an airtight room nine feet long, eight feet wide, seven feet high, made of stone, and there strapped into a chair.

He smiled and nodded his head at witnesses looking through a little window on the outside. They included two women, nurses.

Before him stood a two-gallon jar containing a quart of sulphuric acid and a half gallon of water.

Pulling a string in another room caused a quantity of cyanide of potassium to fall into the acid solution.

Then the gas rose, White smiled again, breathed deeply three times, and was dead. While waiting to be executed, after his conviction of murder, on circumstantial evidence, White was employed in the prison building the stone room in which he died.

When they asked him what he wanted for breakfast, he replied: "A gas mask." He refused the traditional ham and eggs that murderers usually select.

Mr. and Mrs. Will A. Hamby, of Simpsonville, N. C., have a girl baby, three days old. She weighed at birth 17 ounces. Her father feeds her with a medicine dropper and is building an incubator box to keep her warm.

That interests every woman in the wide world. They are interested, also, in the fact that every mother bear, even big bears weighing 1000 pounds, have tiny babies that bother them not at all. They are born while the mother bear is asleep, hibernating.

Some day science will find a way to modify Eve's severe sentence and make childbirth painless. Small babies, like Mrs. Hamby's, would help, as they help the bears.

French newspapers applaud Tardieu's answer to Mussolini, that does not mention the Italian's name: "France is in a position which frees us from the need to fear or to boast."

French history since Charlemagne justifies the statement. But there have been disquieting intervals, as when the Imitation Napoleon, third, thought he could beat Bismarck without army or generals.

Mussolini might have replied that a great part of the glory of France is based on the fact that an Italian boy, born in Corsica, once went to a French military school and took his Frenchmen parading all over Europe, under the eagles of Napoleon.

New South Wales reports a new method of dealing with unemployment.

The government encourages men to start gold hunting, supplying camping outfits and tools and geological surveyors to direct the prospectors.

If this government took up that idea there would be many volunteers. Hunting for gold is a pleasure in itself, even if you don't find any. Men are born gamblers.

This is due in part to prosperous years. Men, women and children well fed, with leisure for exercise and breathing, are less prone to consumption.

Mr. Frederick H. Ecker, the president of Metropolitan Life, is to be congratulated upon the energy with which his company spreads health information and warnings through advertising. That saves the lives of many policy holders and saves the company's money.

You read that Mr. Grundy spent much money, trying to be nominated for senator in Pennsylvania, and failed. Mr. Davis, good labor man, passionate friend of the common people, beat Mr. Grundy and will be the next Republican senator undoubtedly. Everybody said: "How pleasing to see victory for the rugged forces of labor and honesty."

Then, yesterday, you had to read that the Davis-Brown fund, which nominated Mr. Davis for the Senate, but didn't nominate Mr. Brown for governor, amounted to $367,450, more than all the money that Mr. Grundy spent on his failure.

Eight killed in Chicago over the week-end, two others probably will die. The reliable machine gun, so recommended for wholesale gang executions, was put to work. Chicago's police say it is the outbreak of an intense gang war.

FUMES KILL C. A. WEITZ IN GARAGE

Wife Finds Cambridge Manufacturer Dead in His Automobile

Slumped over the wheel of his automobile with the engine running, the body of Carl A. Weitz, wealthy sausage manufacturer, was found in the garage at the rear of his home, Fresh Pond parkway, Cambridge, by his wife, shortly before 8 o'clock today.

Weitz died from carbon monoxide poisoning, according to the Cambridge authorities.

It was a telephone call from the Weitz factory in Somerville that led to discovery of the body.

The manufacturer rose about 5 a. m. and half an hour later departed for the Somerville factory. His wife, who awoke a short time later, believed her husband had reached the factory, but at 7.45 the factory superintendent called the Weitz home and asked for the manufacturer.

DEAD FOR TWO HOURS

Mrs. Weitz became alarmed by the call and ran to the yard. The doors of the garage were partly opened and inside was the car with Weitz slumped across the wheel.

Mrs. Weitz tried to arouse her husband. Then she ran to the house and telephoned the Cambridge police. A police ambulance hurried to the home and the body was taken to the Cambridge Hospital, where Weitz was pronounced dead.

According to the hospital physician, Weitz had been dead for more than two hours before his body was discovered.

Weitz was 69 years of age. Many years ago he opened a small

Hero Released

Grover Cleveland Alexander, otherwise "Alexander the Great," pitcher par-excellent and hero of the World Series the St. Louis Cardinals won from the Yankees, has been released by the Philadelphia National League club.

PHILLIES TURN ALEX LOOSE

Philadelphia, June 3 (AP)—Grover Cleveland Alexander, veteran pitcher and one of the greatest in the National League in his best days, probably has come to the end of his major league career. Announcement was made today by the Philadelphia National League Club management that "Old Pete" has been unconditionally released.

"We are sorry to let Alex go," said Gerald Nugent, business manager of the Phillies, "but he was not helping us and Manager Burt Shotton decided it was useless to carry him any longer. We are going to do everything we can to help Alex land where he wants to go and will see that he gets along all right until he locates.

"Pete hopes to land a pitching job in the Pacific Coast League. He feels he would like to pitch a little longer before turning to a job such as coaching. He said he realizes he can't win in the big leagues any more."

Alexander holds the National League record for victories, having scored 373 triumphs while in the league.

GARRETT CASE EVIDENCE IS COMPLETED

Sullivan, the Only Witness, Today Finishes Story of Ritz Graft

Presentation to the grand jury of the last evidence in the Garrett case—that concerning persons not indicted last week—was concluded today with the testimony of John F. Sullivan, former Ritz Hotel proprietor.

Sullivan was before the grand jury for 20 minutes. Dist. Atty William J. Foley remained in the grand jury room 20 minutes more and the jury then resumed its deliberation of routine matters.

At 1 p. m. secret indictments on routine matters were reported to the court.

The jury will probably be dismissed on Thursday at which time it will be apparent whether any additional indictments in the Garrett case have been made.

The special session of the jury last week indicted Oliver B. Garrett, former liquor raider, Mrs. Garrett and Mrs. Lillian V. Hatch in a total of 208 counts involving conspiracy to extort from Sullivan, and other charges.

In addition to those indicted, Sullivan at the State House hearing named Sergt. Arthur Timmons and Special Officer Arthur Tiernan as recipients of graft for protection of liquor traffic at the old Ritz on Columbus ave.

He was recalled before the jury today to complete the case and was the only witness. Asst. Atty Gen. George B. Lourie was not recalled although this move was expected.

Yesterday's only witness was Chester D. Siebert, of Hyde Park, who at the State House testified he exchanged large bills for small for Officer Tiernan.

FITZGERALD GETS PAPERS

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald today took out papers at the office of Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook for the Democratic nomination for governor in the Sept. 16 primary, finally setting at rest all doubt as to his candidacy.

While the former mayor at present seems to have the field to himself, strong mention has been made of the possible candidacies of John J. Cummings of Boston, Gen. Edward L. Logan, recently elected manager of the George White fund, and Joseph P. Ely of Westfield.

To place his name on the ballot Fitzgerald must secure 1000 signatures from at least four counties.

ZEPP FLIES 90 MILES AN HOUR FAR OUT TO SEA

Dirigible 780 Miles Due East of New York at 9 A. M. on Hop to Spain

Capt. Sir Herbert Wilkins' story of the Graf will be found on Page 3.

New York, June 3 (AP)—The Bamburg-American line received a radiogram from the Graf Zeppelin today, reporting her position at 9 a. m. (E. S. T.) as 40.18 north and 57.30 west, almost 780 miles due east of New York.

At 5 a. m. the Graf was 500 miles northeast of New York, indicating she has changed her course from northeast to southeast and traveled approximately 358 miles in the last four hours.

At 8 a. m. (E. S. T.) the Zeppelin passed Nantucket Lightship, about 710 miles from New York, and a radio message from the ship picked up by the Radio Marine Corp. She said her course was due east.

STARTED AT 9:12 P. M.

The giant ship started on her homeward journey at 9:12 p. m. (E. S. T.) last night and at 10 o'clock was passing over New York city. Dr. Eckener expects to reach Seville in 50 hours.

By a year from next fall, he said before leaving, he hopes to have three big ships, each able to carry 24 passengers and 20 tons of mail and freight, sailing on schedule across the Atlantic.

FOUR WOMEN ABOARD

And by that time, he added, the Graf Zeppelin "can be put in alcohol and preserved."

Of the 22 passengers aboard four were women. One of the women, Mrs. John H. Greaves of New York, had never been up in any kind of aircraft before. Two more, Mrs. Mary Pierce of New York and Mrs. Charles B. Parker of Cleveland, set out last night to cross the Atlantic aboard the Graf Zeppelin for the second time.

Two other passengers were Sir Hubert Wilkins, the explorer, and Lady Wilkins.

Underhill Improving in Capital Hospital

Washington, June 3 (AP)—The condition of Rep. Charles L. Underhill (R), Massachusetts, who is in the Naval Hospital suffering from an attack of indigestion, was described today at his office as improving.

Rep. Underhill went to the hospital last week. He is expected to remain there for a fortnight and then go to his summer home on Cape Cod.

PATTERSON IN COMA; DYING

Capt. George W. Patterson, retired liquor squad commander who suffered a stroke yesterday, lapsed into a coma at his Dorchester home today and the end was believed near.

Dr. Simon Curran, attending him, told Mrs. Patterson that little hope remained for her husband's recovery.

"There is little hope, but while there is life there is some hope," Mrs. Patterson told newspapermen.

Capt. Patterson's breathing was not normal and his limbs remained paralyzed.

He rallied late yesterday, suffered a relapse at midnight and rallied again during the early hours of this morning. At 8 o'clock, however, he lapsed into unconsciousness, which it was feared might indicate the end.

Capt. Patterson suffered a shock on the sidewalk outside his home yesterday, a stroke believed to have been brought on by the mental strain of the Garrett investigation

WARM SPELL IS HERE TO STAY

Tardy summer, whose promise of several weeks ago was quickly forgotten, returned to Boston today and the temperature soared 11 degrees in one hour.

It was thought unlikely that the mercury would soar to 98, the record height for June 3, reached in 1919 on that date, but the day was scheduled to be a "scorcher" in comparison with the recent cool days.

The warm breath of belated spring and early summer came with a shift of the wind to the west and southwest.

At 9 a. m. the mercury stood at 67 degrees, but at 10 a. m. had jumped to 75.

According to the weather man, however, there was a possibility of the wind veering into the northeast tonight, with a resulting drop in temperature.

Sharkey Bout to Be Broadcast to Nation

The Sharkey-Schmeling heavyweight bout at the Yankee Stadium, New York, June 12, will be broadcast to the nation over both networks of the National Broadcasting Co., according to arrangements completed today between officials of the Madison Sq. Garden Corp., the N. B. C. and the Milk Fund, which is the beneficiary of the fight.

Announcement to this effect was made today by M. H. Aylesworth, president of N. B. C., following a series of conferences with Damon Runyon, representing Mrs. William R. Hearst, chairman of the Milk Fund committee, and William F. Carey and Frank J. Bruen of the Garden Corporation, which is managing the affair. The entire cost of the coast-to-coast broadcast will be borne by N. B. C. and associated stations.

Stations broadcasting championship bouts will be not less than 75 in number, headed by WEAF and WJZ, New York, and including WBZ, Springfield, and WBZA and WEEI, Boston.

The main bout is expected to commence at 10 p. m. The broadcast will commence at 9:30 with preliminary descriptions of scenes at the Stadium and the final rounds of the semi-finals.

An innovation in sports announcing will be the introduction of a woman announcer to give a few moments of feminine reaction to the scene.

EVERETT VET FUND IS PAID TO RICH AND CONVICTS

Mayor O'Neill Acts to Stop Graft; State Chief's Report Shows Up Plot

A soldiers' relief commissioner will be appointed in Everett to investigate and block off fraudulent claims for city aid, it was announced today by Mayor Michael C. O'Neill, Jr.

His announcement came following disclosure by Richard R. Flynn, state commissioner of aid and pensions, that "criminals and property owners with substantial bank accounts" have been receiving city funds that should go to needy cases.

Three aldermen were named in the report of Commissioner Flynn, but all three were out of the city today.

Flynn's report disturbed considerably the members of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars in Everett, who first believed that all city aid would be cut off.

STATE MAKES PROBE

This rumor was denied, however, by Mayor O'Neill, who said that the new commissioner will be a war veteran who will soon have the tangle straightened out and the fraudulent claims discarded.

Reports that District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell of Middlesex county had requested a report from Mayor O'Neill regarding the alleged fraudulent payments of soldiers' relief were denied by both the mayor and the district attorney today.

Questioned at East Cambridge courthouse, Bushnell said the matter had not yet reached his attention.

Bushnell added that if Mayor O'Neill felt that there was any evidence of law violations, he, as district attorney, would look into the matter.

The investigation by the State Department, asked for by Mayor O'Neill, in a cleanup of Everett politics, reveals cases in which money is being paid to property owners, persons who own automobiles and have large bank accounts, and criminals with long records, the report says.

Commissioner Flynn reports that his agents have discovered that there is no semblance of an investigation of an applicant's need before he is placed on the relief rolls.

Among the cases in which payments have been ordered suspended is that of a veteran whose court record over a period of the last 12 years shows 17 convictions for offenses ranging from larceny and automobile violations to drunkenness, non-support and assault and battery.

The widow of a Civil War veteran, who is being paid $15 a week soldiers' relief, was found to have a bank account of $2000 and property assessed for $3500. The case was one of a dozen or more cited in which the recipients of aid owned property, an automobile and had bank

DEMANDS THAT HOOVER BARE BRITISH NAVAL PACT SECRETS

VITAL FACTS HIDDEN, SAYS JOHNSON

President Forbids Stimson to Reveal Statements in MacDonald Cables

Washington, June 3—Secret documents bearing on vital points of the London naval treaty are being kept from the Senate foreign relations committee by Secretary of State Stimson, according to Senator Johnson (R.) of California.

So far, President Hoover has refused to allow Stimson to produce certain items of information which are a vital part of the documents furnished to the foreign relations committee last week.

Officials admit that, to avoid revealing the confidential opinions of Prime Minister MacDonald, parts of his cablegrams had been withheld.

Senator Johnson, upon whose motion the documents were requested, served notice in committee he would demand that Stimson be required to furnish all, and not a selected group, of the secret notes between the United States, Great Britain and Japan before and during the London negotiations.

WANT 1927 PAPERS

At the same time the committee, upon motion of Senator Moses, (R) of New Hampshire, voted to require the State Department to submit all the documents bearing on the tri-party naval conference between the United States, Great Britain and Japan at Geneva in 1927.

In Geneva the United States refused to surrender the traditional naval policies which, it has been testified before the committee, were abandoned by the American delegations at London. By examining the documents of both conferences, the committee will seek to determine what caused the American reversal of policy at London.

DOCUMENTS MISSING

After the committee had met to examine the correspondence transmitted to Chairman Borah on Saturday by Secretary Stimson, head of the American delegation, Senator Johnson declared:

"I stated I had not had time in detail to examine what the Secretary of State submitted to the committee, but a casual examination indicated that he had not received all of the documents and papers relating to the London conference and I wished in writing to present a request for them.

"This will be done."

Considerable discussion developed as to the confidential character of the papers sent by Secretary Stimson.

MEETING TOMORROW

Senator Johnson called the committee's attention to the fact that the proponents of the treaty had put into the public record part of the exchanges between Premier MacDonald and the Hoover administration and insisted that, of course, the committee was entitled to the whole of that which now constituted a part of the public record.

When the committee adjourned no definite time was set for another meeting, but Chairman Borah later indicated there would be a session tomorrow. This would give the State Department time to comply with the request for all of the London exchanges and also the Geneva documents.

It became evident that there is little disposition among most committee members to rush the treaty out. Chairman Borah would not hazard a prediction whether the report could be ready before next week at the earliest.

40 PERISH IN SHIP BLAST

Bogota, June 3 (AP) — Forty bodies were recovered today following the sinking yesterday of the passenger steamer Goenaga in the Magdalena river after a boiler explosion. The captain of the steamer, Carlos Mora Henrique Feliahmas, went down with the vessel and his body was among those recovered.

Thirty-five members of the crew were saved. Eleven of them were seriously burned by fire which followed the explosion. The vessel sank almost immediately after the explosion and before any aid could be summoned. The survivors arrived in Barranquilla early today and the injured were sent to a hospital at Tenerife.

CHARLESTOWN SURGEON DIES

Dr. Francis T. L. Maguire, Charlestown surgeon and a practicing physician in the Bunker Hill district for 35 years, died at the Soldiers' Hospital, Chelsea, today as a result of a shock directly attributable to his service during the Spanish War. The funeral will take place on Thursday morning, with services in St. Mary's Church, Charlestown.

Dr. Maguire served as a major with the old 9th Regiment in Santiago in 1898, and later became assistant inspector-general on the staff of Governor Douglas in 1904. He had a brilliant military record and took an active part in civic affairs of his community.

He is survived by a sister, Miss Ella G. Maguire, with whom he made his home in Charlestown.

He was 62 years old.

5 School Golfers Injured in Crash

Bridgeport, Ct., June 3 (AP)—Five members of the Stamford high school golf team were injured last night in an automobile accident, Benjamin Jessup, 17, of Glenbrook, owner and driver of the car, suffered a fractured wrist, an injury to his right elbow and cuts and bruises.

Mayor O'Neill said the state investigation was not asked by him to save the city money.

"There is nothing the city will not do to aid her sons who fought for their country," he declared. "I am sure that those who took money were not consciously guilty of stealing, but were indiscreet and ill-advised.

"I am planning no criminal action against those whose names were stricken from the list by the state investigator. There were, incidentally, 63 cases suspended, 48 continued as deserving and six continued for further investigation."

Mayor O'Neill said the city paid out $22,819.40 in soldiers' relief in 1929 and up to April 1 of this year had paid $13,196.43.

SECRET PROBE

The investigation was conducted during January, February and March with utmost secrecy by agents of the State department of aid and pensions. The work included inspection of bank records, city property taxes, marital affairs and personal conduct of every one of the many persons that Mayor O'Neil believed were receiving the city money fraudulently.

Following a recommendation of the system of awarding relief, Commissioner Flynn's report contains recommendations to remedy the situation. Part of the report is as follows:

"It is very evident that there is lacking an efficient system, and the records of veterans of all wars are not very well kept. The particular trouble seems to be that the aiding of veterans and their dependents is placed in the hands of the city clerk, who has very many duties to attend to, and for that reason the payment of State and military aid and soldiers' relief is not getting the consideration that it deserves, thereby costing your city more than it would otherwise.

DROP UNWORTHY CASES

"The person to properly fill this position, should be just to the taxpayers and also disposed to give a square deal to needy and worthy veterans and their dependents. Dropping unworthy cases will help you to make more generous allowances to your deserving recipients.

"It appears that checks are being mailed out of your city without the formality of the applicant appearing and reporting as to the need of continuance, nor of any certainty of address. In fact, the city clerk frankly admits that in some cases he has never seen the applicant, the case being prepared by subordinates.

NO CRIMINAL ACTION

"Furthermore, it seems that police and court records have been ignored, and aid granted contrary to law in unworthy cases. We find several receiving assistance who are acquiring property through co-operative banks, also parties who have large bank deposits, others owning automobiles, and many using aid for insurance. The payment of aid by check is also responsible for many illegalities."

Mayor O'Neill said the state in-sausage factory in Boston. His venture prospered and the business was rapidly enlarged. Later the manufacturer opened a number of retail shops in and about Boston, where his products were sold.

The fame of the Weitz products spread to other parts of the country and within a few years the manufacturer was sending his sausages to the four corners of the globe.

According to the police reconstruction of the tragedy, Weitz started the motor of his car in the garage and sat behind the wheel for a moment or two while the motor warmed up.

It is believed that at least one of the garage doors blew shut and that the treacherous gas from the exhaust rendered Weitz unconscious before he could get from the machine to open the garage doors.

Weitz was born in Saxony, Germany, in October, 1871. He came to Boston as a boy of 16 and entered the employment of Robert Weitz who was engaged in the meat business here.

Some ten years later Weitz' employer died and the young man took over the business which he developed and enlarged.

His wife, Emma, is the only survivor. Weitz was a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery and of the Elks.

'L' TRUSTEES DUE TO O. K. SUBWAY

Work on Governor Sq. Project Due to Start as Soon as Board Accepts Bill

With the City Council and Mayor Curley already approving, the Boston Elevated trustees met today to act on acceptance of the Governor sq. subway extension bill.

It was understood that the Elevated trustees would approve, thus opening the way for immediate start of the project advocated for many months by the Boston Evening American.

Today's gathering of Elevated trustees was a special meeting called at behest of Mayor Curley, who wrote a letter to that effect to Henry I. Harriman, board chairman.

SEEKS JOBS FOR VETS

The mayor meanwhile planned a conference with the Civil Service Commission with a view toward employing as many war veterans as possible.

According to the mayor's estimate, jobs should be provided for at least 500 men on a per diem basis.

Col. Thomas F. Sullivan, chairman of the transit commission, anticipating the Elevated's approval, has started the ball rolling to have the work going within two and a half months. He estimated that it will require two years to complete the improvement.

In addition to solving one of the city's chief traffic problems, the Governor sq. tunnel will go a long way to relieve unemployment. For this reason, Mayor Curley, in submitting the plans to the city council, urged the utmost speed in their acceptance.

Man Fined $50 for Impersonating Cop

Severin Roche, 23, of Charles st., Waltham, was fined $50 and received a month's suspended sentence in Waltham court, today, on the charge of impersonating a police officer.

According to the testimony, Roche represented himself as an officer to Kenneth Paige, of No. 92 Greenwood st., Auburndale, when he found Paige and a girl companion in a parked automobile on the Norumbega road on the night of March 19.

Paige reported the affair to the police and Roche and a companion, Stanley E. Dix of Cherry st., Waltham, were arrested. Dix was discharged when it developed that he had taken no part in the affair.

TRIES TO KILL RICH CHICAGO DIVORCEE

Chicago, June 3—An attempt was made early today to assassinate the wealthy Mrs. Lottie Brenner Dechow, 55, who recently divorced the young, self-styled "Count Von Buelow."

Two shots fired through a second-floor window in her residence at 1928 Sheridan rd. pierced the coverlet of her bed. The would-be assassin had climbed to the roof of a garage abutting the mansion, to fire upon the woman.

Mrs. Dechow, who was left a fortune by the late Alderman Nate Brenner, had arisen five minutes earlier to go to the chamber of her sister, Mrs. May Gross, whose husband was buried yesterday.

Police inquired concerning Mrs. Dechow's feelings toward her divorced husband. She recently sought his arrest on a charge of false swearing in the procurance of their marriage license, but they are now on friendly terms, she declared.

"I'm sure Henry wouldn't do it," she said. "He's traveled in bad company and lived off my money, but he wouldn't be that vicious."

Pygmies Plentiful in Africa, Woman Hunter Reports

Paris, June 3 (AP)—There still are plenty of pygmies in the interior of Africa, Mrs. Carl Akeley, widow of the noted American explorer and big game hunter, reported upon her return here today after a year's hunting the little people with camera and typewriter.

Mrs. Akeley went into the northern Belgian Congo and came out at Nairobi with a large documentary collection for the Brooklyn Museum and other institutions.

Mrs. Akeley, whose husband died at Kabale, Ugunda, in 1926 and was buried on the spot where he slew his biggest gorilla, said that the legend of the pygmies dying out was due to their shyness, which had taught them the art of making themselves all but invisible.

She said she found many villages of the little people, who are the size of normal 10-year-old children. They live in tiny huts made of leaves, in which they crouch. They move away at the slightest alarm and constantly are shifting from one food source to another.

Man Faces Charge of Attacking Wife

As a result of an alleged attack on his wife, during which she endeavored to escape from a bedroom window with the aid of a rope made of bed clothing, Dionysio D. Meildel, 31, of No. 48 Auburndale ave., West Newton, was arraigned in Newton district court today on an assault charge.

According to the Newton police Meildel's wife is in serious condition at the Newton Hospital and is expected to die.

The police say Meildel attacked his wife with an ax, and that in her effort to escape with the aid of the bed clothing, she fell a dozen feet, injuring herself internally. The husband was held under $2000 bail for a hearing on June 9.

Files Bankruptcy Petition

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in U. S. District Court today by the Hub Cycle and Auto Supply Company of Portland st. Liabilities are listed at $250,544 and assets at $55,000.

CANNON ADMITS "LOBBYING A LITTLE," THEN DEFIES PROBERS

BARE HOOVER LETTER TO BISHOP

Won't Tell Committee About His Funds in the Smith Fight; Clash With Walsh

Washington, June 3 (AP)—With questions that struck deep into the recent history of the prohibition movement and touched also on the anti-Smith campaign that split the Democratic solid South in 1928, the Senate Lobby Committee today sought from Bishop James Cannon, Jr., the inside story of the controversy which has raged about him so persistently.

Protesting that he had acted "as a private citizen," Bishop Cannon told the committee it had no right to ask him about his activities as head of the Virginia anti-Smith campaign in 1928.

Asked in particular about organization of the anti-Smith movement he put it up to the committee itself to decide whether he had not grounds for objecting.

CHARGES ATTACK.

For the time being the question went unsettled, as committee members argued with the witness.

When the questioning verged to the 1928 campaign, he said:

"This attempt on the part of the committee to go beyond its powers and to investigate any anti-Smith activities is clearly not only political but personal and because I believed it to be an effort to attack me and in some way to impair my influence, as the wet and Roman Catholic press have been doing for nearly two years, I must decline to submit the jurisdiction of this committee over either my political or personal activities."

Senator Walsh (D), Montana, in adjourning the committee, informed the Bishop that "of course you will have to take responsibility" for declining to answer.

Cannon replied the committee's investigation of him was "persecution."

"I cannot help but get the implication in that statement," said Walsh.

Cannon hastily replied:

"I do not charge you, Senator, with persecution."

Just previously the Bishop had charged that wet and Roman Catholic interests had tried to discredit him. Walsh is a Catholic, and a Dry.

"LOBBIES A LITTLE"

He had received no payment for his prohibition activities in the last 20 years, he declared, although Dr. E. L. Crawford, secretary of the board, received $5000 a year.

The board, he said, was principally interested in prohibition and peace.

"It was not my habit to lobby personally very much," he added, explaining that he used the word "lobby" as meaning legitimate activity to present views on legislation to members of Congress.

"I wish to emphasize," he said, "that I never got a dollar for the prohibition work, and in that sense am not a lobbyist."

Then he added, peering over his glasses:

"If you want to call me a lobbyist under that definition, it is all right. I never saw many men."

Questioned by Walsh, Cannon read a telegram he and others sent Secretary Mellon in 1928 saying that if prohibition enforcement appropriations were not increased, the question would arise whether the treasury "sincerely desires effective enforcement."

ABOUT JOB-SEEKERS

Cannon said he urged Mellon to support the Harris amendment to increase prohibition appropriations by $25,000,000. Mellon replied in a telegram that the amendment would restrict the appropriation to the prohibition bureau, while enforcement also depended on the Coast Guard and other agencies.

Cannon then wired Mellon the distribution should be left to the secretary. This telegram also urged creation of additional federal courts.

Walsh, who is a dry, commented that it appeared "you addressed yourself to heads of departments, as well as to Congress." He asked if the bishop sought appointment of government officers.

"My position on that for 30 years has been that it must be an exceptional case for me to take any part in the appointment of officials," Cannon answered. "I was in this work from the moral point and not from the political. I very rarely did it. I have occasionally done so."

THANKED BY HOOVER.

An exchange of correspondence between Cannon and President Hoover, before his inauguration, was read. The letter to Hoover, dated January 24, 1929, said:

"In order that you may have full information, I am enclosing some statements in reference to the appropriation of $24,000,000."

Hoover replied:

"Many thanks indeed for your letter of January 24. I am very glad to have the information you send."

The letter from Crawford to Cannon said, in part:

"I understand that before making any appointment Mr. Mitchell is going to want to know how the great prohibition board stand in the matter."

An Invention to Thwart Jewel Thieves

It is now possible to photograph your precious jewels so they can be identified in case of loss or theft. That's the scheme developed by Frank Heitzler of Jamaica Plain. Mrs. Dorothy Weiss, assistant to Heitzler, is recording colors in jewels, a process which makes identification even more thorough. . . . . .

Gem 'Fingerprints' Baffle Thieves

By LOIS KENNEDY

Jewel thieves, beware!

It is no longer possible to steal valuable gems, pry them loose from their settings and sell them, confident they can never be identified.

Through the invention of Frank Heitzler of Jamaica Plain "fingerprinting" precious stones is possible. No two stones are alike and once the record has been made they can be identified for all time.

Heitzler's method is rather simple. The stone is carefully cleaned, magnified at least 100 times and photographed. A double exposure is made on the plate to get the deep as well as surface flaws.

When the picture is developed, each imperfection shows prominently. Notations of color and size are made, completing a record that will last forever.

Born and educated on the continent, Heitzler attended a technical school for some years and then went to a watchmakers' school for two years. He has been in this country for 40 years.

Working as an expert repairer of scientific instruments, he was continually confronted with difficult problems. It took him about four years to build his jewel cameras. He did all of the work himself, buying only the lenses for them.

He is now working out a process of using color plates. The process is much more difficult and about four times as expensive as the black and white pictures method.

Heitzler can also determine the value of gems with his camera, and can pick out the real stone from the synthetic.

OLAYA IS GUEST OF HOOVER

Washington, June 3 (US)—President-elect Enrique Olaya of Colombia is in the capital today as the official guest of the United States to receive the high honors conferred on visiting rulers.

He was received by President Hoover at the White House, and last night was guest of honor at a state dinner, the first at which Mrs. Hoover has acted as hostess since she suffered a wrenched back in a fall two months ago.

Dr. Olaya was the second dignitary to be received by the President within 24 hours. Infante Alfonso, Orleans, cousin of the King of Spain, was received Sunday night and departed later for Lakehurst aboard a navy plane piloted by Lieut. J. J. Brown, where he boarded the Graf Zeppelin to return home.

Almost as soon as Dr. Olaya concludes his official visit Dr. Julio Prentes, President-elect of Brazil, will arrive in the United States to receive similar honors.

Southbridge Woman, 75, Burned to Death

Southbridge, June 3—Mrs. Louise M. Sanders, 75, one of the most prominent women of this town, was fatally burned when her clothes caught fire from a gas stove explosion in the kitchen of her home at 93 Chapin st.

She died two hours later in the Southbridge Hospital. Her death saddened the entire town, where she was prominently identified with civic activities.

FAITH 'BROKEN' IN BUDGET

War broke out today between Mayor Curley and the School Committee over the committee's passage last night of budget of $15,858,979 for 1930. The budget was approximately $600,000 more than that of last year.

According to the mayor, he and the School Committee reached a gentlemen's agreement when it took office that the school budget would be cut, or at least would be confined within the 1929 limits.

Today the mayor arranged a conference with the committee.

The budget included $12,262,116.60 for salaries of principals, teachers, members of the supervising staff and others; $422,068.80 for salaries of administrative officers, clerks, stenographers, attendance supervisors and other employes; $911,943.34 for salaries of custodians and matrons; $493,735 for fuel, light and power current; $1,960,292.60 for supplies and incidentals, and the balance for pensions and a variety of minor salaries.

COST OF JAKEY VICTIMS HIGH

Worcester, June 3—The Jamaica ginger paralysis epidemic which has already resulted in two deaths, is costing the city of Worcester Prohibition and a considerable sum of money, it was announced today.

There are 33 patients in the Worcester City Hospital suffering from the effects of drinking the "jakey" and each of these costs the city an average of $4.25 per day.

According to Dr. MacIver, superintendent of the hospital, the city has already spent $5678 in caring for "jakey" victims.

All the patients in the hospital are suffering from paralysis of the nerves and their restoration to health will be a tedious process, it is said.

Policeman Blamed for Fatal Shooting

Norwich, Conn., June 3 (AP)—Coroner Edward G. McKay in a finding issued today held Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith of the New London police, criminally responsible for the fatal shooting on May 20 of Gordon Simms, 37, of New London.

The detective shot Simms when the latter resisted arrest on a warrant charging Simms with breach of the police, a misdemeanor.

Milk and Cream Rate Increases Upheld

Washington, June 3 (AP)—Increases in rates on milk and cream moving between New England points which railroads put into effect in June, 1927, were held to be reasonable today by an Interstate Commerce Commission decision.

$2000 Dress Theft in Lawrence Store

Lawrence, June 3—The R. A. Day department store, Essex st., two blocks from police headquarters, was entered during the night. One hundred and fifty dresses, valued at $2000, were taken. Entrance was made through a transom over the front door. The burglars left by a rear door, which they jimmied.

ZEPP SALUTED BY BROADWAY IN FAREWELL

Sir Hubert Wilkins With Bride on an Aerial Honeymoon, Bound for Germany

(Copyright, 1930, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Japan, South America, England, Ireland and Continental Europe. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or in part prohibited.)

EXCLUSIVE

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS

Radio Dispatch

Aboard the Graf Zeppelin, en route to Friedrichshafen via Seville, June 3—We're off!

For myself and Lady Wilkins it is an aerial honeymoon. For most of the 22 other passengers it is a first airship flight, and that in itself is an occasion.

At 10:12 o'clock Eastern Daylight Time last night, the world's most famous aerial voyager lifted itself above the Jersey pines and headed northward. Forty minutes later, at 10:55 P. M. the Graf's passengers were treated to the first thrill of the 7,000 miles of air travel before them, when the dirigible passed over New York.

FLY OVER BROADWAY

We approached the great metropolis from the south, flew over the Battery with the Statue of Liberty beckoning to us from the right, and then headed straight up Broadway and the Great White Way. We then returned and passed over Brooklyn.

Below us twinkled myriad lights. To us rose the sound of thousands of automobile horns, giving the Graf a raucous farewell, we were soon beyond it all, heading northward toward the spot on the Atlantic Coast where Dr. Hugo Eckener planned to head across sea by the great circle course.

Just before the takeoff Dr. Eckener said that he expected to reach Seville within 50 hours, which means that we should be moored in the Spanish city by midnight Thursday. Our stay there will not be for more than two hours.

After replenishing the Graf's fuel supply Dr. Eckener will start for its home hangar at Friedrichshafen where he will moor at about 10 o'clock Friday night.

The Graf is still the drawing card of the air. Despite its frequent visits there were thousands at Lakehurst to wish it bon voyage.

For me the take-off meant more than a mere Zeppelin flight. It was really a great event of my life—the romance of a belated honeymoon—the wedding trip that other matters had prevented us from taking before.

MISHAP AVOIDED

It was a perfect night as the mobile mast walked the Graf out onto the field. The naval air station searchlights played along the silver side of the Graf as the veteran air traveler rose into the air and her motors began to roar.

For a moment earlier it had looked as though the take-off might be accompanied by a mishap. A still cross-hangar wind was blowing and the Graf's tail swung low over the assembled automobiles. The lower tail fin almost scraped their tops. So perfectly did the new mechanical mast function, however, that the situation was saved.

Booster for Boston

William A. Ryan of Dorchester, who sent out 10,000 letters to cities all over the world in effort to stage in Boston an International Conference of Cities. Few Bostonians have done so much to boost the Tercentenary doings as has Ryan. The association is chartered by the State. (Staff photo.)

TO HOLD CITIES SESSION HERE

Arrangements are underway for a session of the International Conference of Cities in Boston in connection with the Tercentenary celebration, according to word received by William A. Ryan of Dorchester, "father" of the Tercentenary idea.

Back in 1923 Mr. Ryan and four associates started the movement for a celebration and were granted a charter by the state. Edmund R. Brown, publisher, served as president of the corporation; A. G. Dehly, playwright, vice-president; Mrs. Mary Neal Richards, well-known artist, treasurer; Fannie L. Bonner, secretary, and Mr. Ryan, corresponding secretary.

Single-handed and at his own expense Mr. Ryan sent out over 10,000 letters to cities and towns all over the civilized world, acquainting them with the idea and inviting them to send representatives. Responses in practically every case have been received by him.

Mr. Ryan's committee has been merged with the official Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary, Inc., and he retains his unpaid post as a general publicity representative.

Everything But the Kiss

Naval Academy tradition shattered. Miss Alberta Ely was perfectly willing to present his company colors to Midshipman T. B. Hughes of Kansas City as all brides-to-be do at the graduation exercises, but she blushingly declined to complete the custom by kissing her fiance in public after the presentation. The couple have been sweethearts since their grammar school days and will be married this week. He is commandant of prize-winning Co. I. (Associated Press photo.)

4 DEAD IN BIG WOODS FIRE

Port Arthur, Ont., June 3 (AP)—With four persons believed dead, several others unaccounted for and numerous homesteads wiped out, rangers and volunteers today were battling a forest fire which threatened this town of 3500 on the northwest shore of Lake Superior.

Flames, driven across hundreds of miles of timberland and underbrush by winds of gale force, reached Brent Park, a suburb of Port Arthur, and many residents had abandoned their homes before the progress of the fire.

$1,500,000 FOR TEXTILE TESTS

Washington, June 3 (AP)—Approximately $1,500,000 will be available for research for the textile industry under the Textile Foundation bill now awaiting President Hoover's signature.

The foundation is to be composed of the secretaries of commerce and agriculture and three textile experts to be named by the President with offices in Washington. It will be financed by donations from textile manufacturers and merchants and is expected to have a $1,500,000 fund now in the hands of the Textile Alliance to start operations.

The Textile Alliance, created as a non-profit organization in 1914 to protect mill owners and prevent unlawful exactions deceptions and frauds in the manufacture and sale of mill supplies, derived the $1,500,000 from purchase and sale of dyes in 1919 at the request of the Government.

HOOVER AVERS HIS VETO WAS JUSTIFIED

Washington, June 3 (AP)—President Hoover said today he had not changed his opinion that the Spanish-American War veterans' pension bill enacted over his veto yesterday by Congress was unwise.

"I favored a liberalization of the Spanish War veteran pensions," Hover said, "because they have not been on a parity with other services, but I have not changed my opinion that it should have been worked out in such a way that rich men, or men having substantial incomes, should not draw pensions from the government.

"I have made no suggestion at any time of a pauper provision against veterans or anything akin thereto.

"I do not believe we should alter the principles which have been held for Civil War veterans all these 70 years, requiring that men claiming pensions should have at least 90 days service.

"Further than this, I do not believe it is right to change our national policy and to call upon the nation to pay disability allowances to men who have or who may tomorrow destroy their health by vicious habits.

Modern Jazz Driving Original Out of Africa

Washington, June 3, (US)—The African jungle, where jazz is said to have originated, prefers the American variety to its own. Buying phonographs and records in huge quantities, the natives have reacted so quickly to the American versions that the pure native music is rapidly disappearing, according to commerce department advices today.

Consequently the Carnegie Foundation and the research board of South Africa are recording the native music for permanent record while it still exists, it was stated.

Cambridge, Eng., June 3 (AP)—A. F. R. Wollaston, famous explorer and tutor, and S. N. Potts, an undergraduate, are dead as an outcome of a shooting tragedy today in historic King's College, Cambridge.

Wollaston, 55, senior tutor of King's College, was a member of the 1921 Mount Everest expedition, had traveled in central Africa and New Guinea and he held numerous scholastic distinctions.

Police believe that during an interview between Potts and Wollaston, at which Willis was present, the undergraduate drew a revolver, fired at Wollaston and at Willis, then turned the weapon on himself.

Note to Wife Bares Haverhill Suicide

This scribbled note greeted Mrs. Matilda Jermyn when she returned to her home, No. 6 Plummer st., after visiting neighbors late last night.

She screamed and fell in a faint. Neighbors rushed in, read the note and in the basement found the husband, Clarence Jermyn, unconscious from gas.

Police removed him to Gale Memorial Hospital where he died a few hours later.

Prince Carol Back With Divorced Wife

Bucharest, June 3 (INS)—Newspapers here today claimed that the former Crown Prince Carol has perfected a reconciliation with Princess Helen, his divorced wife and mother of their son, King Michael.

Carol, the newspapers predicted, is due back in Rumania within a month.

On June 1 Carol was separated from Mme. Lupesca, for whom he renounced the throne in 1925, according to the newspapers.

Cardinal of Rheims Cathedral Is Buried

Rheims, France, June 3 (AP)—The body of Cardinal Lucon, heroic figure of the World War days, who stayed under fire during the long bombardment of Rheims, was laid to rest today in the crypt of his beloved cathedral. Cardinal Lucon, who was 87, died last week.

Last of Civil War Veterans' Post Dies

Warren, June 3 (AP)—John G. Leach, 90-year-old veteran of the Civil War, died today at his home here after a brief illness. He was the last surviving member of Clara Barton Post 65, G. A. R.

Favor Living Musicians

Joseph N. Weber Walter Damrosch

Does advertising bring results? Joseph N. Weber, president of the American Federation of Musicians, is telling Walter Damrosch, dean of American conductors, that it does. He offers in evidence 3,000,000 signed membership coupons in the Music Defense League, obtained by newspaper advertising of living musicians, as against mechanical music.

NEW YORK—The Lindbergs have abandoned their plans for taking an apartment high up in a new building in the fashionable Sutton Place district along the East river.

FRIED FISH.

ALEXANDRIA, LA.—What a poor fish! An eight-pound Buffalo fish was so curious when a Red river levee broke that it went through the hole. It landed in a cotton field. It has been fried.

PADEREWSKI.

13 PRISONERS ESCAPE FROM 'BAD WARD'

Ionia, Mich., June 3 (AP)—Thirteen inmates of one of the "bad wards" escaped from the Ionia State Hospital for the Criminal Insane early today after making a prisoner of the night superintendent.

The inmates forced the night door guard to release them by threatening to kill the superintendent, Gene Owen. One of the fugitives was recaptured three hours after the break. The others were the object of a widespread search.

Before leaving the 13 men cut telephone wires leading from the institution, which is a mile and a half from the city limits, and opened doors of other wards on the first floor. This released approximately 150 men, who, however, made no attempt to escape.

Perry C. Robertson, superintendent of the hospital, described the release of the 150 men as creating a very serious situation."

The capture of Owen was effected by a ruse. One of the 13 men in the ward stopped a guard on his rounds at 2:30 a. m. and told him another inmate was crawling out at the rear of the ward.

Owen and the guard were seized by the inmates, who were armed with improvised knives and some of whom had razors. They submitted as they saw that fight was hopeless. Owen was taken to the front door, where the inmates told the guard they would kill the night superintendent unless they were released from the building.

Of the 12 prisoners still at large five were under prison sentence for murder or assault with intent to murder. The remainder were robbers or housebreakers.

HUB TO GREET MUSICIANS

Plans were nearing completion today for the American Federation of Musicians' Convention, which will open here next Monday.

A feature of the meeting will be the report of Joseph N. Weber, president, in which he discusses the prospects of sound pictures.

His report deals with the campaign of the Music Defense League for real music by real musicians in moving picture theaters. He contends mechanical music tends to debase moving pictures when the usual function of the machine is to enhance. He intends to show the support the Music Defense League has gained in its fight to put musicians back in the theaters.

JUDGE TO HEAR CHELSEA GRAFT ARGUMENTS

On next Tuesday, Judge Pierce of Supreme Court will hear arguments in the so-called Chelsea graft case in which the names of Mayor Wasgren, former Mayor Quigley and others have appeared, it was announced today.

On Friday, Judge Pierce will hear the question of confirming the report of James J. Ronan, master, and court will be asked to modify an injunction previously issued to Cornelius E. Twomey, awarded a five-year contract for removal of rubbish and ashes, may collect for work done before the injunction issued.

A week from today Thomas I. Carleton's petition will be heard for a writ compelling Mayor Whalen to sign a contract awarded to him by the Chelsea health board. Carleton, who headed the taxpayers' petition to stop payment to Twomey, claims Mayor Whalen is abusing his powers in refusing to sign the contract. The mayor claims Carleton is unable to meet its requirements.

Police Chief Slain, Mistaken for Thief

Absecon, N. J., June 3 (AP)—Chief of Police William M. Schoettlin of Absecon was fatally shot here today when he was mistaken for an intruder while investigating an alleged disorderly house.

George Howard Much, 31, Atlantic City hauling contractor, was arrested, charged with the shooting. Three others, including two women, are being held as witnesses.

Aged Sea Captain Held in Sea Crash

New York, June 3 (AP)—Capt. Johnson Pittis, 70, for 50 years a sailor, today was continued in $1000 bail on a charge of homicide as a result of what he says was his first marine accident.

Capt. Pittis' schooner, the M. J. Taylor, Saturday ran down and sank a launch in Long Island Sound off City Island. Emil Jessen was drowned. Four other men and three women were saved.

1000 Cases of Rum on Seized Runner

Norfolk, Va., June 3 (AP)—A whiskey-laden former American sub-chaser, now known as the Metmuzel and believed to be of French registry, was seized off the Virginia coast at midnight and brought into Norfolk by the Coast Guard patrol boat CG-22, as a suspected rum runner. The craft, her cargo of 1000 cases of bourbon whiskey, and twelve men found aboard her were under guard at Coast Guard headquarters.

Lincoln Biographer Drops Dead in Office

MEET FRED CHAGNON AND LILLY LANGDON

A well known pair about town are Lilly Langdon and Fred Chagnon, street clowns of considerable talent. They perform daily in the shopping district. We like their "rube couple" act better than some of the second rate vaudeville turns we have paid to see.

Fred is a Revere boy and resides there. Lilly Langdon lives in the South End. Fred still wears the same grotesque getup that he has worn for years on the legitimate stage . . . checkered highwater tight pants and dinky miniature straw lid. A bandana handkerchief protrudes invitingly from a pants' pocket. Now and then some fresh kid grabs the big wiper and Fred gets mad. Instanter the show stops. Hot words are exchanged and the performance doesn't go on again until the wiper is recovered.

Lilly plays the Rube's wife well, but she isn't so good at street repartee as her partner. Her make-up—old highing boots and Paisley shawl—doesn't go quite so well either with the old ladies.

THE STORY OF THEIR PAST LIVES

Back in the '90s Fred Chagnon was a well known jockey. He rode against such stars as Jule Mart and Fred Simms. Twice he galloped in a winner on the famous Lamplighter. Fred took on weight and had to give up the track. He joined Hap Ward, minstrel star, and did blackface. He has also played with many of the old timers. Lilly danced with Francy Davis in Little Red Riding Hood.

THE PATHOS OF THE PROFESSION

Fred told us of the hard times members of the profession have just now. Many of the vaudeville people are out of work . . . some of the best ones, too. Topliners have difficulty in getting engagements . . . What with the chain speakies and everything, actors are up against it. They have to turn their hand to whatever they can find.

MEARS BEGINS FINAL PLANS

New York, June 3 (US)—The last hectic week of preparation for the round-the-world flight of John Henry Mears began with mechanics, radio and instrument experts swarming over the plane City of New York.

Following Sunday's conference with Capt. Von Schiller, navigating officer of the Graf Zeppelin, whose globe-girdling performance of 21 days Mears expects to lower, Mears and his pilot, Fred Melchior, said they were confident of covering the 19,000 miles in 20 days or less.

Capt. Von Schiller advocated a straight compass course to Dublin air field from Newfoundland, without recourse to usual marine navigation methods.

He argued that, even if the plane encountered so heavy a wind drift as 20 miles an hour for 15 hours, the difference would be only 300 miles, which would mean that the world fliers could safely hit the south or north tips of Ireland.

KELVINATOR has something

NEW Four different degrees of cold in four separate compartments of the cabinet assure maximum preservation of your foods requiring distinct temperatures.

HELPFUL Automatic control throughout eliminates any thought or care on your part . . . there is nothing to regulate.

EFFICIENT You always have plenty of ice. Capacity ranges from twenty to thirty-four pounds in De Luxe models—in one freezing.

There is an extra-quick freezing compartment to meet emergency demands. Iso-Thermic Tubes—a Kelvinator feature—freeze ice or desserts with amazing rapidity.

PRACTICAL The degree of cold in each compartment is completely centralized—it is impossible to lower the temperature throughout the entire cabinet—which might result in food spoilage, through freezing.

4-WAY COLD •

MAIN COMPARTMENT: a 40° to 50° constant cold—the right temperature to keep most foods fresh for many days at a time.

THIRD COMPARTMENT: a lower degree of cold for freezing ice and desserts.

ONLY $20 DEPOSIT

A deposit of $20 places a small Kelvinator in your home. Balance in convenient monthly payments to Edison Service Customers. Payments can be placed on your monthly service bill for your convenience.

The cost of operating an electric refrigerator, in the average home, is 5 to 8 cents a day, depending on the size.

PICTURE CLUE MYSTERY MESSAGE No. 22

NAME .....

ADDRESS .....

CITY .....

TOWN .....

PRINT NAME AND ADDRESS

RULES GOVERNING AWARDS

1. Beginning Monday, May 12, every day, including Sunday, for twenty-nine days, a message will be broadcast over Stations WNAC and WHDH, from which a word or words will be omitted. On the thirtieth day no message will be broadcast and contestants will supply their own message. Everyone is invited to receive these messages and locate the missing word or words with the help of a clue in the form of a picture published in the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser. This picture will illustrate the missing word. On the thirtieth or last message the picture alone will be published and entrants will supply their own message to fit this picture.

2. $500 in cash will be paid by the American and Advertiser to readers who send in the nearest correct and complete sets of solutions to the thirty messages, and other valuable awards will be made.

3. Everyone residing in New England is allowed to participate in these awards except employees of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser, their immediate relatives and families.

4. Hold all messages until you have the complete set of thirty (30). Then send them all in together in one package addressed to the Radio Mystery Message Editor, Boston American-Advertiser, 5 Winthrop Square, P. O. Box 185, Boston, Mass., within the period to be specified later in this newspaper.

5. Messages used may be extracts from speeches of famous men and women, from poems, from correspondence or other suitable sources, and each extract will be matter of known record and the missing word must be the exact word used in the original message.

6. Each package sent in must be fully prepaid, first class postage. Packages received with insufficient postage will not be considered. You may send in as many sets as you wish, but no person will be entitled to more than one award.

7. In case there are no complete sets of correct solutions submitted, awards will be given to the persons submitting the nearest correct solutions, giving weight to skill and judgment. In cases where the solutions to the twenty-nine messages are identical, awards will be made on the basis of judgment, exact accuracy and skill in supplying the thirtieth or final message.

Thus the 29 messages most nearly correct, and the last or ORIGINAL MESSAGE deemed the best, will win the principal award.

8. The Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser reserves the right to make any change in, or addition to, these conditions that it may deem necessary for fairly and properly conducting the Plan and the decision of the Tercentenary Radio Mystery Message Editor on any question which may arise will be absolutely final and the entering of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations made now or to be made. Do not send answers until all messages have appeared.

PICTURE CLUE NO. 23 IN TOMORROW'S BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

NEWS OF THE PORT OF BOSTON

By CARL MORRISON

Because of a big increase in membership, the Foreign Commerce Club is considering cancelling its present constitution and branching out on a larger scale.

On next Thursday the ways and means committee and executive committee will meet jointly to discuss the proposed change. This new development has the endorsement of the majority and come important changes are expected.

Among the new applications recently received were:

William S. Booth, of Booth Steveden Co.; Clement Norton, superintendent of Commonwealth Pier; Joseph Desmond, of Stone & Downer; Capt. George A. Lord, of the Port Authority; H. P. Lambert and David Kelliher; of H. P. Lambert Co.; Carleton W. Ellms, and Philip C. Shute, both of Fyke-Shute Co.; James M. O'Connor, of U. S. Shipping Board; Charles E. Ware, Jr., and Owen A. Smyth, both of George E. Marsters Travel Bureau; Capt. Harrington Pike, of U. S. Sea Service Bureau; Capt. Bernard Lamb.

Meanwhile, plans are progressing for the big outing on June 28, the details to be announced later.

Steamship Golfers

Some of the star golfers of the harbor gathered at Sagamore Springs over the week-end, to get in practice for the new steamship golf club proposed by Leo Coughlin. Besides this representative of the Southern Steamship Co., those present included:

George Toole, of Rogers & Webb; Joseph Desmond, of Stone & Downer; Edward Bemis, of the customs house; Scot Hill, of the Marine Guide; David Kelliher of H. P. Lambert Co.; and Bernard Costello of Rogers & Webb.

Jack Halloran, manager of the marine department of C. H. Sprague & Sons, is advocating making over golf courses to match those he encountered in South America. There are no hills to climb, and few rocks—those on the course actually have to be imported.

"I never got into trouble on those courses," commented the steamship man.

Today's Who's Who

William J. Longridge, head of the inward freight department of Furness-Withy, has just passed his 30th year as steamship man with this international concern. He is English, but does not knock off work for tea. He has his coffee at noon instead. This official, who was in Liverpool until the Warren line was absorbed in 1912, thoroughly knows every phase of steamship work. He is active on the Foreign Commerce Club membership committee and in the Traffic Club.

On the liner Majestic, arriving in New York today from Southampton and Cherbourg with 815 passengers, are, C. K. Cummings, Boston architect, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Davis, of Boston.

Speed Records

The Sitmar Line has clipped five hours off the time required between Constantinople and Genoa.

The Grace liner Santa Clara on the home lap of her maiden voyage between New York and Valparaiso clipped 22 hours from her own record of 16 days.

Miscellaneous

Seamen signing up for cruises yesterday included: B. L. Hoban of Cambridge, for England, and William F. Lehan of East Boston for Germany.

Our daily section of sea advice to those planning their first cruise today consists of:

"When the mate sends you down to the engine room for a bucket of steam, never fail to bring it back without spilling any of it on the deck."

Our "old timer" today reports:

"I well remember when Capt. Eugene O'Donnell made a gallant contribution toward the relief of the sufferers in Halifax after the big harbor explosion. Boston was the first city to send a ship, and the captain did the navigating."

THREE INJURED IN COLLISION

Three men were injured when two machines crashed at the junction of Boylston, Clarendon sts. and Huntington ave. early today.

Police of the Back Bay station stated that a sedan operated by Charles Bronatsky, of North Anderson st., West End, collided with a taxicab, operated by Joseph J. Gibson, of Taylor st., Boston.

The impact was so great that the sedan was tipped over. Bronatsky and a friend, Patrick Frush, 39, of 39 Clark st., Boston, were pinned in the car.

They were extricated by Sergt. Dennis Shea and Back Bay officers, and rushed to the City Hospital in a passing machine where it was found that Bronatsky was suffering from contusions of the left knee and arms. Frush suffered contusions of the scalp, right groin, face and chest.

Gibson, who was thrown out of his cab, was also taken to the hospital, suffering from contusions of the chest and back.

Review Denied for 'Five and Ten' Law

Washington, June 3 (US)—A petition for review of the constitutionality of the Jones-Stalker "five and ten" act was denied by the Supreme Court yesterday.

Frank Ross, restaurant keeper at Elm Grove, Ohio, sentenced to two years in Federal Prison for making one sale of liquor to a prohibition officer, appealed for the review.

Vandalism Probed in Chicago Schools

Chicago, June 3 (AP)—Systematic vandalism in a number of Chicago schools, resulting in thousands of dollars' damage, is under investigation, Board of Education officials said today.

Six institutions reported depredations during the past week. More than $15,000 worth of furnishings were destroyed by intruders before setting fire to the precautional building of Tilden junior high school.

Presbyterians Pick First Woman Elder

Milwaukee, Wis., June 3 (AP)—Miss Sarah E. Dickson was unanimously elected an elder of the Wauwatosa Presbyterian Church last night, the first woman to attain that office in the history of Presbyterianism.

The election followed a constitutional declaration made Saturday by the General Assembly in Cincinnati.

French Cruiser Off Today

The French cruiser Ville D'Ys, which has been at the Charlestown navy yard since May 26, will leave this afternoon for Halifax.

HUNT LOST GIRL IN DANVERS

Ipswich, June 3—On a new clue search was made in Danvers today for Helen Pappas, 18, missing from her home, 32 Broadway, here, since yesterday.

The girl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pappas and was employed in a cloth factory in Peabody. When she failed to return home from work her father enlisted the aid of the police.

Chief Blauvelt communicated with the Peabody authorities and the latter learned she was last seen in Danvers.

Girl Aviator and Sir Esme Honored

London, June 3 (UR)—Sir Esme Howard, former British ambassador to the United States, and Miss Amy Johnson, the 22-year-old England to Australia flier, were among those yesterday accorded recognition in King George's list of honors.

Sir Esme was created a baron, while Miss Johnson was made a commander of the British Empire.

What infinite relief to know Kotex deodorizes

Kotex gives you every refinement of comfort and protection . . . and it deodorizes a complete, safe way.

DAINTINESS makes one important demand which some women overlook. And Kotex answers that demand. It deodorizes, by a special process, as it is worn. You've no idea what a relief it is!

And Kotex gives you—too—the relief that comes with safe protection. It is filled, you know, with Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding. This is a cellulose substance which, for sanitary purposes, fulfills the same function as cotton with 5 times the absorbency.

Used in leading hospitals

In world-famous hospitals, where health protection is doubly vital, this very same absorbent is now used today for 25% of America's leading hospitals now use Kotex filler, so its superiority and safety are unquestioned for your use.

Kotex is never bulky and uncomfortable, because it is fashioned in a way that eliminates bulk and makes the pad inconspicuous under the closest fitting frocks. It is not only soft to feel, but soft to wear. And that softness lasts — it doesn't pack into chafing hardness.

Once you use it, you'll find it indispensable. There are many reasons why—and one is the fact that it is so easily disposed of. That fact alone has changed the hygienic habits of millions of women the world over.

KOTEX IS SOFT . . .

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.

2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.

3—Disposable, instantly, completely.

Letters From American Readers

California Raps Hoover On New Tariff Bill

Editor Boston American:

With all due respect to President Hoover, his many friends in California are calling the present tariff bill "the most scandalous tariff measure that was ever prepared." It has given a knockout blow at our export trade, just when it is shrinking.

If passed, it will add to the cost of living and there is every prospect that it will cripple our international standing. I have just got information from San Francisco giving in detail the opinions of representative persons who are bitter against it. It is like an earthquake to business interests there, it is asserted. JOHN K. COWING.

Time Slush Funds in Politics Were Doomed

Editor Boston American:

It is hoped the days of big boodle and slush funds used in political campaigns have passed and gone forever, having held the stage in the political arena lo, these many years in every state of the Union. The American people are fast losing faith in those politicians and near-statesmen who cannot offer something better and more substantial towards the best interests and welfare of citizens than a prolific expenditure of money and slush funds while conducting their campaigns in their appeal for support from the electorate.

Such candidates heart and soul aspiring for office, and using such despicable methods, are inimical to the people's interests. Thus such sterling patriots (?) in the future will be eventually relegated to the rear of public life and defeated at the polls, unless they shape their political methods and policies toward a betterment of the body politic and methods affecting the general welfare and happiness of our citizens in all legislative matters pertaining to the working classes, among whom are now our noblest citizens.

The voters of Massachusetts will now expect something more constructive from elected public officials than a flagrant use of large funds primarily to succeed in election to office, in aspiring for positions within the gift of the people. This nemesis in campaigns defeats the will of the people in the honest choice of candidates for public office, such nefarious tactics are positively unjust and un-American.

"The time is ripe and rotten ripe for a change then let it come," said Lowell.

Slush funds and the extravagant use of money in political campaigns must cease. Its sinister influence threatens our free institutions, in their attempt to pollute the electorate with slush funds.

Mr. Lee Has Some Ideas on the Weather

Editor Boston American:

There's something out of joint with the climate. We have to shiver when we should be wiping the perspiration off our brows.

It's the gulf stream that has something to do with these radical changes up here. Then there's that planet that will pay us a very near visit, June 1 and after making a bow, will recede into its proper place. They say that this earth has passed through at least four great ice ages and that Boston is now experiencing the declining stage of the last one. N. H. LEE.

Why Harvard Bans Sir John Bowring's Hymn

Editor Boston American:

I have been asked by a Harvard student why the stately hymn of Sir John Bowring, "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," has been banned at Appleton Chapel. This is not because of the sentiment of the hymn, which is endorsed, but because the author wrote it at the very time he was charged with selling opium to the people of China, backed by British cannon.

It was about a year ago that an English preacher at Harvard quoted a verse of this hymn. President Lowell asked the preacher afterwards if he knew where and under what circumstances this hymn was written. The preacher did not. Then both looked it up and found the foregoing statement about its origin is true.

Since then preachers at Harvard have steered clear of the hymn. H. N. LINDSAY.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

A Boston preacher is encouraging a matrimonial school. This school would meet a long-felt need. Many parents do not take that vital interest in telling sons and daughters what will make a happy marriage. They are more concerned with the event of the wedding day, its incidents and how to make it a grand occasion. Young women talk more of what they will have for a wedding dress and who to invite, but long before this neglect some of the weightier matters of married life.

Some plain talk before marriage to a couple is more important than the bridal veil or who to have for best man.

We do much for the day of the marriage and so little of preparing for it as a life venture. Remember what old Ben Franklin said: "Keep your eyes wide open before marriage and half shut afterward." Not so much out of date, is it?

J. W. BECK.

Voicing the Sentiment of Multitudes

Editor, Boston American:

Hearty congratulations to Bishop Lawrence. He has just rounded off 80 years. For years, he has been and is today a distinguished citizen of this Commonwealth.

His many enterprises in the cause of religion and education line the pathway of his years. His monument today in the Episcopal Church is the creation of a pension fund for aged clergy. This stands out in the history of his denomination as a marked feature of his executive ability and administration.

Gifted with sound judgment in business, he has given advice to many organizations seeking endowments. His co-operation with Wellesley College some years ago, in this capacity, proved his insight was sure of results. In other ventures of a like nature he has shown himself unusually efficient in leadership.

Through these waning years, he is proving that his vision is still keen and his natural force not abating.

May he live many years more to give the community and the church his valued counsel and wisdom. This is the wish of his many friends and admirers.

Schoolboy's Pluck is Example for All

Editor, Boston American:

We all admire pluck. We admire it more when we find it connected with education. This thought came to me when I saw Henry Putturelli of Medford, being rolled to and from school in a baby carriage by his chum. Both boys are pupils in the fifth grade of the Lorin L. Dame school. Henry is hampered by a broken leg. Unlike many boys with the same drawback, he does not care to mope at home till he is able to walk.

He is commended for his pluck by his teacher and others. If that boy keeps on working his pluck, he will come out on top. You have got to have a great deal of this in life today. This is a great world, if you do not weaken. That Medford boy is a shining example to many boys who have not his courage or perseverance. So I am writing, to keep this boy in mind. He'll get there, so will other boys who have "push and pull" in their natures.

A TEACHER.

Drinking Youth One of Prohibition's Tragedies

Editor, Boston American:

I notice in your letter column that you are fair to both sides on prohibition. You give everyone a chance to get rid of their thoughts on this intensely interesting subject.

Prohibition is not a cure-all. It has done some good without question. But one of the greatest tragedies of prohibition is the effect upon young men and young women. It is now just the right thing to get intoxicated on certain public occasions.

While there has been a decrease in certain directions of drunkenness a physician of standing recently said:

"It isn't the quantity of liquor consumed. It's the quality that makes the ruin. If no whiskey should be sold under seven years old, what do you think of the whiskey that is only seven days old?"

All I have to say there is need of some sort of a compromise in the law. Bootleggers are all for prohibition. They are in this racket for business and they are getting it. There is too much indulgence in quantity of liquor that prohibition seems to encourage.

Food Protection For Warm Weather

The effect of ice upon food is something more than refrigeration. In an ice-refrigerator meats are not discolored. Moisture is not taken from fruits and vegetables nor are they robbed of their delicate flavor.

Boston ice works automatically to protect food. Simply keep the ice compartment two-thirds full and a good refrigerator will regulate its own cold temperature. No delicate adjustments necessary.

Use sparkling and flashing Boston ice wherever necessary to add the last touch of flavor and appetizing appeal to every meal.

The race for health...

It is easily won by the man who eats the foods that furnish real nutriment and do not tax the digestion. Shredded Wheat with milk not only tastes good, but is good. The crisp, flavory shreds of baked whole wheat are so appetizing and strengthening. Combines the "roughage" you need with the proteins and mineral salts. Delicious for any meal with your favorite fruit.

What can be done with Life Insurance

(4) Provision Against Permanent Disability

ACCIDENTS and infirmities daily take their toll and render many previously able individuals incompetent to engage in further productive work.

Most of us feel that such misfortune is very unlikely to happen to us, but we know that it is not absolutely impossible. We shrink from the thought of becoming a burden upon those whom we have taught to look to us for support and protection. But definite and guaranteed safeguards can be utilized against utter failure in such emergency.

Through LIFE INSURANCE, arrangements can be made for an uninterrupted income to one's self and family, should it be necessary to relinquish one's place as a busy and productive individual in the world of affairs.

MISS WELLS WILL WEAR the traditional bridal satin of ivory tone fashioned in medieval style yoke and bishop sleeves of Alencon lace, long train in three points. Her headdress will be of tulle with a garland of lily buds, and she will carry gardenias, lilies of the valley and sweet peas. The bridesmaids' gowns will be in rainbow shades of silk net, very long and full-skirted and they will carry old-fashioned bouquets of pastel-shaded sweet peas and roses. The bridal couple will be at home after a honeymoon in Hawaii at Memorial Drive, Cambridge.

Quincy A. Shaws, Jr., to Entertain in Their New Brookline Home

THE QUINCY A. SHAWS, JR., of Sears rd., Brookline, are having a dance and house-warming to celebrate the completion of their new home in Brookline and dinner party will number about 20 and other friends will come in later to dance. Mr. and Mrs. George A. Lyon, Mrs. Augustus Thorndike, Jr., of Chestnut Hill and Mrs. Donald Moffat are also giving dinners before the affair.

CONSTANCE AND PEGGY CREIGHTON are returning from a winter's stay in Honolulu on June 6 and their numerous friends are looking forward to their return. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Creighton of Beacon st.

ANOTHER WEDDING TO add to the already long list for this month is that of Dorothy Goodrich to Oakes Ames Spalding, Harvard, '28, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Spalding of Milton. Miss Goodrich is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Augustus Goodrich of Hartford, Ct. After the ceremony there will be a reception at the home of the bride's parents, after which time Dr. and Mrs. Goodrich will also receive the congratulations of their friends in honor of their silver wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Larz Anderson's Operetta to Be Given By Emerson Students

MRS. LARZ ANDERSON IS lending her magnificent gardens at Weld for the production of "The Little Mermaid," on Saturday for the benefit of the Children's Theater and the Massachusetts Federation of Music Clubs. Mrs. Anderson wrote the fairy operetta and it was set to music by Mrs. Moses H. Gulesian. The scenes will take place in the water-garden near the lagoon. There will be a pirate ship sailing on the pond and a wedding procession with lighted tapers walking up the willow path.

STUDENTS OF EMERSON COLLEGE OF ORATORY are taking the principal parts in the production assisted by several singers, singing Chinese songs. A number of Junior League girls will pass around with cakes and refreshments during the intermission. The affair will be held in the afternoon.

MISS FLORENCE WARD, daughter of the Richard Wards, and Betty Fitzpatrick, daughter of the Paul Fitzpatricks, are giving a dinner-party Saturday for Annette Hollis and her bridal attendants at the Tedesco Club. Miss Hollis will be married to Malcolm Hill on June 11 at the Church of the Advent, Brimmer st., Boston.

MISS DOROTHY HALL, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gardner Hall, is sailing for Europe on June 7.

Women's City Club 'Open House' June 11

By NANCY BREWSTER

The Women's City Club will keep "open house" Wednesday, June 11, when the Beacon Hill Tercentenary celebration attracts hundreds of citizens and visitors to the old houses and gardens and their hostesses in costume.

City Club members, also in costume, will receive and show visitors through the clubhouse and do the tea honors later in the afternoon, outdoors in the pleasant and sunny garden of the clubhouse.

An exhibit of Colonial needlework will be displayed in the club library under the supervision of Mrs. Charles E. Morgan and is to be an exhibition of homespun coverlets, patchwork quilts, embroidery, crewel work, samplers, quilted petticoats, hooked rugs, embroidered pictures and costumes of the 18th century.

SILHOUETTES ON VIEW

A remarkable exhibition of silhouettes will be on view in the writing room, which collection was loaned to the club for this purpose by the Rev. Glenn Tilley Morse, who will be present to personally explain the art. His collection is rated as the largest and one of the most representative in the world.

The following members are serving on the club's Tercentenary committee: Mrs. Lorenz F. Mutter, chairman; Mrs. Frank Chouteau Brown, Mrs. Robert Cushman, Mrs. Ralph W. Dunbar, Mrs. Roland G. Hopkins, Mrs. Herbert H. Longfellow, Mrs. James J. Storrow and Mrs. Delano Wight.

Miss Margaret A. Fish, chairman of the reciprocal relations committee of the club, in her annual report, makes public this list of affiliated clubs during the current year, added to the Women's City Club of Boston; American Woman's Association, New York City; Taranaki Women's Club, New Plymouth, New Zealand; The Chelsea Club, Ottawa, Canada; Woman's City Club, Youngstown, Ohio; Woman's City Club, Charleston, West Va.; Woman's City Club, Baltimore, Maryland; and Clubgebouw voor Vrouwen, the Hague, Holland.

832 GUESTS IN YEAR

Thus the Women's City Club of Boston, like great and grand parent organizations is stretching its hand over the continent, acquainting those who do not know with what Boston stands for and maintains.

During the year 832 members of affiliated clubs have been the guests of the club including five from London, three from Paris, one from Sydney, Australia, two from New Zealand and others from across the sea, according to Miss Fish's report.

Women's Italian Club Plans Luncheon at South Shore Inn

Down to the South Shore will members of the Women's Italian Club take themselves to Hobomock Inn, Pembroke, for their annual luncheon.

Mrs. Fred Solari, as chairman, has planned unusual features in which she has been assisted by Mrs. Lena Damiano McSweeney and Mrs. John J. Bacigalupo.

These items, as necessary for any outing, and will be found at this summer party, will be in charge of the following chairmen: food, Mrs. William H. Sellers, Brookline, and Mrs. Gilman M. Lougee; nursing bottle contest, Mrs. Allen Newton; mile-driving contest, Mrs. Charles W. Barker; cash and carry contest, Mrs. William Doe; ball-throwing contest, Mrs. Howard North; fortune teller's assistant, Mrs. Herbert Brooks; judge of winners, Mrs. William W. Davis; duck pond, Mrs. Charles H. Clark; tickets, Mrs. Charles H. May.

Bay State Women Contribute $25,000 to Foundation Fund

More than $25,000 has been contributed to the Foundation Fund of the General Federation of Women's Clubs by Massachusetts clubwomen, Mrs. Arthur Devens Potter, Massachusetts director, will announce in her complete report at the biennial convention, which opens in Denver Thursday.

Of this amount one-half will be retained by the State Federation and the other half given over to the Foundation Fund, a three-year project with $2,000,000 as the ultimate goal. Mrs. Azel A. Packard, new General Federation director from this State, will take up the completion of the money-raising, the Foundation Fund message ever her little piece when she appears before the clubs of the State during the next two years.

Mrs. Potter also will announce five new clubs, which have been admitted to membership in the General Federation: Boston Daughters of Massachusetts, Cohasset Woman's Club, Northampton Woman's Club, Orange Woman's Club and Somerset Woman's Club.

"If you take pride in Massachusetts' Foundation Fund record at the biennial in Denver, will it not be a satisfaction to have had a part in bringing about this result?" Mrs. Potter left as her parting message before boarding the Denver express.

The Tunic Frock Slips Into the Paris Mode

Easy, Cool and Comfortable for Warm Weather Wear; Variety Welcomed

From Paris Bureau, Boston Evening American.

Paris, June 3.

IF YOU ARE sartorially jaded, try the effect of a tunic as a tonic. The tunic frock is youthful and for the warm weather is as pleasant to wear as it is easy, cool and comfortable. It is a pleasing variant of the one-piece frock and yet is different without being too extreme.

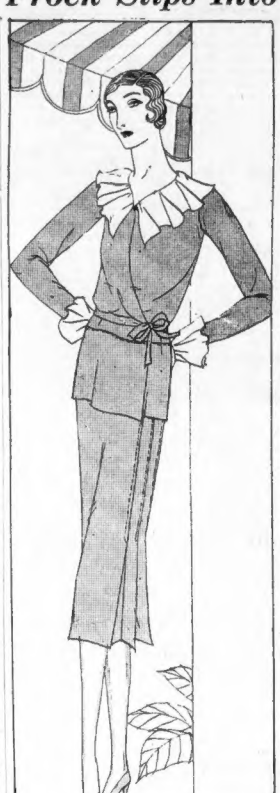
The latitude allowed by the mode permits and even welcomes variety, and it is nice to know that our clothes can assist us to be ourselves and still up to the minute in our attire.

To be of the mode and still be individual is the highest sartorial achievement, and it is now within the reach of every woman who is sensible enough to know that sense and good judgment can assist a small sum of money to travel far along the path of fashion.

A new and pleasing version of the tunic frock is depicted in the appended sketch. It is a Mirande model of pale blue shantung, a felicitous choice for summer wear, and the cool effect is increased by the circularly cut collar and cuffs of white wash crepe. The tunic blouse crosses in front, tying at one side and is very carelessly bloused at the natural waistline. A group of pleats is placed at each side of the skirt to insure ease and freedom of movement.

A delightful feature of the present season is to be found in frocks as crisp and as green as a fresh salad. These frocks, generally of green taffeta are much liked by young women who find in them a vivid expression of their own light-hearted gaiety. These frocks are generally free from embellishment, relying on the color, cut and fabric to achieve the desired effect.

The frock sketched for this page at the establishment of Maggy Rouff is of crisp taffeta in a luscious shade of apple green, and the bodice is cut in surplice effect and drawn over to one side. There it is caught beneath two flowers of matching green taffeta. The close fitting yoke is drawn about the hips and gathered up at the side to a point beneath the flowers, in the same manner as the bodice. The flaring long skirt opens in front over a narrow underskirt. The former is of even length all around, barely clearing the floor.



PALE BLUE SHANTUNG is used in this pleasing version of tunic frock which is from the collection of Mirande. Blouse crosses neatly in front and is tied at side. (Sketched in Paris).

GREEN AND CRISP as a fresh salad is this frock of taffeta. It is from the collection of Maggy Rulf and is lucious shade of apple green. Skirt barely clears floor. (Sketched in Paris).

Presidents' Club Announces Dates for Five Meetings

In announcing club dates, Mrs. Forrest F. Collier, program committee director of the Presidents' Club, writes and asks that I print the dates of her club meetings.

They are for next season's schedule, November 3, January 6, March 4, April 15 and May 14.

Close to a thousand ex-presidents belong to this group, organized in 1916. It serves primarily as a means of social exchange between women who have served their respective groups arduously and well.

During the first week in August, old furniture and choice things from the sunken chests of valuables owned by Hyannis residents on Cape Cod will be exhibited by the Hyannis Woman's Club under the auspices of the art department, Mrs. Charles C. Paine, chairman of the inter-racial committee, is also planning to show dolls dressed in the costumes of other lands belonging to the Federation, at the public library during the summer months.

Marriage Clause Change Refused

Cincinnati, June 3—By a small majority vote the 142d Presbyterian's General Assembly of the U. S. A. turned down a committee resolution that would have stricken from the confession of faith the section that denounced marriage between Presbyterians and Catholics.

"What Brings Popularity?"

Famous Screen Stars say, "Lovely Skin"

The one thing which is irresistible . . . which wins the hearts of everyone . . . is alluringly soft, smooth skin.

Forty-five of Hollywood's foremost directors say, "The most captivating charm a girl can have—lovely skin."

And the great screen stars agree.

To insure this precious asset of theirs 9 out of 10 screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap.

CARMEL MYERS

As fascinating Carmel Myers says: "It's so refreshing . . . and it leaves the skin so softly smooth."

Constance Bennett, Pathé's lovely star, finds this delicately fragrant white soap . . . "delightfully soothing!"

CONSTANCE BENNETT

And petite Louise Lorraine says: "It lathers so quickly . . . and it's so gentle to the skin."

So widely known is the screen stars' preference for Lux Toilet Soap that it has been made the official soap in dressing rooms of all the great film studios.

Mexicans' Divorce "Mill" Held Illegal

Mexico City, June 3 (AP)—The Mexican Supreme Court today handed down a decision ruling unconstitutional the divorce laws of the state of Morelos where hundreds of divorces, including many to Americans, have been granted in recent years at Cuernavaca.

The decision was contained in the granting of two writs of injunction in recent divorces. The court ruled invalid the divorce law promulgated by Acting Governor Puentes but did not specify what was the status of the many divorces granted in Morelos.

To Reopen Airplane Service to Islands

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Preparations for the opening of airplane service between Boston, Nantucket and Maine, to be operated by the Curtiss-Wright Flying Service, are well under way, and the first ship of the newer types was delivered today.

Flying from Buffalo in two hours and 55 minutes, F. P. Kendall, student pilot for Curtiss, brought a Curtiss Thrush to Boston, the first ship of its kind to visit here. The Thrush will be used on the Boston-Portland leg of the service, with a tri-motored Ford flying from here to Nantucket, by way of Hyannis, and Martha's Vineyard.

A lesson in airplane efficiency is learned from an inspection of the Thrush, which is an outgrowth of the famous Curtiss-Robin. The Robin carries two passengers and pilot with a 185-horsepower motor, and has a top speed of 120 miles an hour. The Thrush carries five passengers and pilot on a 225 Wright Whirlwind motor, and speeds along at about the same top speed.

Seating its load of human freight two abreast, the cabin monoplane offers every facility of the higher-priced automobiles. All metal parts inside the cabin are chromium plated. The upholstery is gray, with a l woodwork painted to match.

According to Harry Copland, manager of the Boston station of Curtiss-Wright, the ship will go into operation on June 20. Passengers to Rockland and Bar Harbor will transfer at Portland for an amphibion, and may get off at any point along the cost. The Nantucket trip and Maine run will all coincide with the New York Colonial and Albany New England planes, thus offering through service from New York to Bar-Kor.

Having completed the New England air tour and the air races at Springfield, Jimmie Haizlip left East Boston airport at 11.10 a. m. today to keep a 12.15 luncheon engagement at Albany.

The ship is powered with a stock 300 horsepower Wright Whirlwind motor, and with its cruising speed of between 180 and 190 miles an hour, Haizlip will attempt to smash the existing record between Boston and New York tomorrow.

Roaring along at 225 miles an hour wide open, Haizlip stated that he could simply cruise along and still break the six-year record of 58 minutes, set in 1924 by Lieut. R. C. Moffat.

Triple Execution at Sing Sing June 26

Ossining, N. Y., June 3 (Ubi)—A triple execution has been set at Sing Sing prison for Thursday night, June 26. The prisoners to be executed are Alexander Bogdanoff, May Rybarczyk and Stephen Grsechowski, three young Buffalo bandits.

All have announced they will make an appeal to Governor Roosevelt on the ground that the court of appeals divided on the question of granting them a new trial.

Killed in Accident

Westboro, June 3—A two-ton soap mixer tipped from its skids while being moved into the new Kenworthy Company plant here instantly killing Percy French, 37, of Brockton.

The Weather

[illegible]

The BIG House

A Thrilling Drama of Life and Love, Baring The Horrors Behind Prison Walls

By JACK LAIT

Adapted from the screenplay by Frances Marion and George F. Hill from A. Reine-Goldstone's Mayer-Cosmopolitan production

Detectives Follow Ruby to Morgan's Room—He Is Taken Back to Prison

Morgan remembered the final impulsive confession of their mutual love, the lovelight in Anne's eyes only a few hours ago.

In the first chapter of "The BIG House" we meet Duncan Morgan, a good-looking young man who was sent to jail for his third "stretch." Morgan was a robber. He got away with crime for a while, but the cops were too fast for him. Next we meet Dean Ward Kent. On a wild New Year's Eve party his drunken driving results in a terrible smashup. Kent is found guilty of manslaughter, as one girl was killed, and is sent to the BIG House for seven years. He is thrown into a cell with two others and is saved by Morgan from a beating by the terrible "Butch." Morgan confronts Kent. The convicts start a riot over food. Kent slips a knife in Morgan's pocket and the latter is placed in solitary confinement when it is found. He escapes from the prison hospital in a dead man's shroud, makes love to Anne and is warned by his former sweetheart, Ruby.

"Oh, so the skirt gave you the air, eh?" she said knowingly. Then "Well, you've always got Ruby you cheatin', good-lookin', crooked, twist twisted fox."

Morgan looked into her liquid brown eyes. He was about to say something when he heard the doorbell jangle. They were in the small parlor, just off the hall. They heard the landlady's voice, like grinding brakes, topping the gruff voices of men.

"We know he's in here!" one insisted.

Four men walked in.

"Well, we got you, Morgan. We knew the jennie'd come pussydoggin' to you sooner or later. Her trail is as intrikit to pick up as a camel in a phone booth."

Never Flinched
Handcuffs on Morgan

"You dirty—" began Ruby.

"Here, hold this little mick while I clip the comealongs on Morgan."

"Let me go!" screamed Ruby. "I'll tear your eyes out!"

But one of the detectives held her fast. Morgan felt the cold bracelets on his wrists. He never flinched. He just tossed Ruby one look.

"Oh, Dunk, I never knew they was following me!" cried Ruby. "I swear a dyin' oath— —"

He ignored her. To the docks he said.

"Well, what's the delay?"

"Don't do no Houdini, or we'll lay you out, Morgan," warned the detective who held him by the arm, a gun in his other hand.

"Sink that gat—I ain't drunk," shot Morgan.

Ruby was hysterical.

"Let me go, you lousy bulls! Why don't you leave a square guy alone—when he wants to go straight you won't let him. You blood-suckin' bedbugs"

Shut off that little cat," he ordered one of the men. "And you," he indicated another, "phone headquarters that we've nailed Morgan. We'll take no offsides with him, tell them I said so—we'll hand him right down there, trussed and tied."

"Uhu—you can't win," sneered Morgan

"Dunk, ain't there something I can do?" pleaded Ruby.

"Much obliged — you've done enough'

'But you don't blame me —you don't think— —"

"No, you was trying to warn me."

'I was, I was, I swear it on me dead Irish mother's immortal soul— —"

Morgan hesitated. Then:

"Yes, tell her how it happened. Tell her my right name, everything—tell her to forget me. They'll give me four more years on my sentence and they'll start me with 60 days in the hole - I'll never beat the stir, now."

"Well, come on and quit that yowlin'," the detective ordered.

"Goodbye, Ruby,
Tell Anne About It"

"I'll tell her, Dunk," called Ruby, as they pulled him away. The fourth detective remained with her on the doorstep. "I'll tell her what a right guy you are and how lucky she'll be to get you after you work off your stretch,"

"Goodbye, Ruby," I believe you."

"Goodbye, Dunk — God look after you— —"

* * * *

Ruby's voice trailed off into a moan. The detective had to support her boneless figure. A small crowd had gathered and heads poked out of windows along the block. The landlady was wide-eyed with terror and stood in the doorway wringing her hands

"He seemed like such a gentleman," she said.

"And," sobbed Ruby. "I love him."

"Nevertheless— he seemed such a gentleman," repeated the landlady.

SEARCH FOR GUNMEN FUTILE

Suspects "Out of Town" as the Detectives Hunt for Four in Shooting

Working on three theories and without a definite lead in any one, police today made little progress in their search for the four gangsters who yesterday shot and seriously wounded Guy Perrelli and Joseph "Chick" Bruno in Warrenton st., South End.

Gangland was "out of town" as detectives searched the underworld haunts for suspects.

Of one point police are practically certain that it that Perrelli was the intended victim of the violence and Bruno an accidental victim because he happened to be in Perrelli's company.

The latter, at City Hospital, denies he knows his assailants, but admits he would not "squeal" if he did.

Theories constructed in search for a motive include a North End liquor war, dissension among pool racketeers and a vengeance plot against Perrelli for testifying in a court case against a North End gangster.

Both victims of the shooting are expected to recover.

HULTMAN TO TACKLE TAXI PROBLEM

Will Appoint Citizens' Committee and Stand Firmly by Its Recommendations

In an effort to solve the taxicab problem in Boston so as to protect the interests of the public as well as the cab owners, Police Commissioner Hultman announced today he would appoint a citizens' committee and stand squarely back of its recommendations.

The commissioner said he had an open mind on the entire taxicab problem, and that the committee he would appoint would number taxicab owners and operators, as well as plain citizens among its members.

According to the last police report there are 2950 licensed taxicabs in Boston, and public stands to accommodate only 119 machines.

Heretofore, the police have frowned on taxicab drivers cruising about the streets looking for fares, but Commissioner Hultman said he had an open mind also on this phase of the problem and that he would act on it in accordance with the recommendations of the committee.

FOUR HURLED FROM AUTO; GIRL IS DYING

Two Other Passengers Injured When Auto Rams Gates of Charlestown Bridge

One man is dead, a girl is dying and two others were seriously injured when an automobile crashed through the gates of the New Charlestown drawbridge and came within two feet of dropping 25 feet into the channel.

DEAD

DYING

INJURED

Miss Regina Mcdonald, 18, of 9 Tehoe st., Dorchester, lacerations of the scalp and face.

Benjamin Cohen, 20, single, of 17 Hollander st., Roxbury, lacerated wounds of scalp and face.

The accident happened shortly after 12:30 this morning when an automobile, said by the police to have been operated by Kushner, was crossing the bridge from Charlestown in the direction of North Washington sq. Whether it was unusually dark or whether Kushner was operating his car at such a speed that he could not control it, police cannot say, but the machine crashed into the gates which are placed up while a ship is passing through the draw.

The machine was evidently traveling fast as to the top of the car was ripped off and all four occupants were thrown to the pavement with violent force.

Medford Man May Win School Post

Opinion in Medford today was that a local man, already connected with the Medford public schools, would be selected to succeed Superintendent Herbert W. Hawes, who recently resigned his post to become head of the Bryanus normal school.

There are 14 applicants for the post and members of the school committee informally discussed their qualifications at a meeting last night. There was no vote taken. The new superintendent will likely be selected at the meeting two weeks hence.

Hays of Brighton in Race Again for Seat

Accompanied by a group of supporters, Rep. Martin Hays of Brighton, whose differences with former Gov. Fuller enlivened the 1927-28 sessions of the Legislature, today called at the State House and took out renomination papers for his seat from the 21st Suffolk District.

Hayes faces the hottest battle of his political career in the coming primary with Harold J. Oppenheim of Allston as his opponent. Two years ago Oppenheim came within less than 350 votes of winning.

East Boston Fire Probed by Police

East Boston police and the State fire marshal are today investigating a fire which broke out early today on the top floor of a three-family tenement block at 145 Putnam st., East Boston.

The fire started in the hallway leading to the apartment occupied by Joseph Lodisi and family. They were aroused by the crackling of flames and Lodisi rescued his wife and children. Police say that several oil soaked rags were found

FLAMES SWEEP WOBURN BLOCK

The whole business district of Woburn was threatened early today by a fire in the dry goods store of James F. McGrath at 365-369 Main st., Woburn. Aid was called from surrounding towns.

The fire started in an upper floor of the four-story wooden building, which was filled with inflammable material and both buildings adjoining are of wooden construction. For a time it appeared as if the entire business section would go up in flames.

Fire officials immediately ordered the sounding of two extra alarms summoning every available piece of apparatus from surrounding towns.

Several hours later the blaze was reported under control, with damage limited to the McGrath building. The top floor of the building had previously been used for tenements, but these have been unoccupied for some time. No one was reported injured in the fire.

Warner Will Probe Gordon in Paris

Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner and Dist.-Atty. William C. Clark of Essex County at a conference at the State House decided to get in touch with police authorities in Paris, France, to determine whether William H. Hood is under arrest.

Hood, better known in New England as Dr. George E. Hoodini, clairvoisant, has been sought on an indictment warrant of Essex County on the charge of larceny of $5,108 from Lillian Field Curtis of Ipswich and now of Brookline. Warner stated that he is not certain that Hood is under arrest. He said that it will be decided later whether Hood's extradition will be requested.

TERCENTENARY BOARD SPLIT ON RACIAL GROUP CELEBRATIONS

BARRY WOULD REFUSE FUNDS

Fitzgerald, However, Wins Hearings for Various Bodies Planning Fetes

Warning that the controversy might result in a "nasty mess," John F. Fitzgerald, chairman of the Boston Tercentenary committee, succeeded in having laid upon the table a resolution before the executive committee of that body to deny appropriations to racial groups seeking recognition during the coming Tercentenary exercises.

The motion was introduced by former Lt.-Gov. Edward P. Barry, who declared participation by racial groups would be a duplication of the program already arranged by Tercentenary sub-committees. He was supported by John Jackson Walsh, who said that no racial or religious group could be designated as having made a more valuable contribution to America than any other.

MONEY AND TIME SPENT

"It is time for Boston to realize," declared Walsh, "that the Tercentenary celebration is to be carried out by Americans and not by groups of nationals."

Judge Frank Leveroni, in opposing the motion, said many racial groups had made preparations to participate in the Tercentenary celebration, and urged the committee to recognize the time and money expended.

Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald declared the controversy hinged upon a delicate situation, and asserted he would not throw the groups involved through the window" until their representatives had been heard.

On his substitute motion it was unanimously agreed to invite the racial group representatives to meet the executive committee next week.

HITS LOGAN'S PLAN

Walsh also attacked as hasty and unwise the plan of Gen. Edward L. Logan, chairman of the parade committee, to stage a Charter Cavalcade from Salem to Boston.

The communication from Gen. Logan described the Cavalcade as a re-enactment of the journey of Governor Winthrop from Salem in 1630 with the charter of the Bay State colony.

His opposition, however, was overruled and it was voted to permit Gen. Logan to conduct the Cavalcade.

BIG PAGEANT PLANNED

Julius Daniels of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company informed the committee that the gas and electric companies of Greater Boston and the New England Telephone Company have combined to present a Tercentenary pageant and will, in addition, contribute a substantial sum to the city for its exercises.

Mrs. Eva Whiting White, chairman of the pageant committee declared the programs on Boston Common would begin on the night of July 16 and continue there three nights weekly until Labor Day. She also said her committee had obtained outdoor entertainments in Franklin Field over the same period twice weekly. The executive committee passed an appropriation of $8000 for these events.

An appropriation of $15,000 was voted upon motion of Frank C. Dana, manager of the Massachusetts Association of the Chamber of Commerce, to provide a boat for Tercentenary visitors on trips around Boston harbor.

CHILDREN TO TAKE PART IN DRILLS

Dorchester to Hold Field Day in Tercentenary Program Tomorrow

Dorchester's Tercentenary activities will reach their peak tomorrow when 15,000 school children participate in field day exercises at Franklin Field.

A half holiday has been declared in public schools of the district to enable all to be present at the start of activities at 1 o'clock. Pupils of all schools will participate in calisthenic drills and athletic contests. In addition, the finals of the Regimental track series will be held.

RECEPTION TONIGHT

There will be addresses by Mayor Curley, John F. Fitzgerald and J. H. H. Wheeler, mayor of Dorchester, England, honor guest at the observances.

A reception will be tendered to Mayor Wheeler and his party by the Dorchester Historical Society tonight in the Second Congregational Church, Codman sq.

Joe Mitchell Chapple, author and lecturer, was the principal speaker. Speaking of the relations between the United States and England, he said:

PRESENTS PORTRAIT

"May the ties of our friendship continue as long as the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes endure—endless as the waves that knife our shores."

Mayor Wheeler presented a portrait of Thomas Hardy, English author, to Patrick J. Connelly, president of the Dorchester Board of Trade. Connelly gave the mayor a booklet of old and new Dorchester.

In addition, the finals of the Regimental track series will be held.

CHILDREN TO 21 WIN DIVORCE DECREES IN DEDHAM

Seven Men In the List to Sue Wives; Mrs. Wheelwright Is Given Verdict

Mrs. Delia W. Wheelwright of Brookline was granted a divorce today from William Bond Wheelwright, Harvard graduate and advertising specialist, who was recently ordered discharged from a sanitarium by court order.

The divorce was granted by Judge J. R. McCook in probate court at Dedham. It was one of 21 decrees, seven of them to husbands, in six of the latter seven cases cruel and abusive treatment was alleged.

Wheelwright, 52, is of the class of 1901, Harvard. The Wheelwrights were married in 1907 and have two children.

$350 MONTHLY ALIMONY

A year ago he entered a sanitarium. There was considerable litigation when he appeared desire to be discharged and the case went to the Supreme Court, which last November decided in his favor.

In her suit Mrs. Wheelwright alleged cruel and abusive treatment. The case was uncontested. Stipulations were filed and approved by Judge McCoole, under which she will receive $350 monthly alimony and will be given the custody of the children.

Mrs. Emma J. Haynes of Milton was given a decree against Charles S. Haynes, described as now of New York. She alleged desertion in 1913, after 18 years of married life. She was given custody of the three children.

THREATS ALLEGED

Mrs. Reuben M. Reynolds of Brookline was granted a divorce from Dr. Charles L. Reynolds. She alleged intoxication and cruel and abusive treatment. They were married in 1929.

Mrs. Margaret M. Campbell of Quincy was given a decree against Harold Campbell of the same city in 1928, two years after their wedding, she said, he threatened her with a revolver and tossed a bottle at her.

When he objected to her going to dances at Brant Rock in 1925, Harry A. Newcomb of Cambridge told the court, Isabelle, his wife blackened his eye. He was given a decree.

FIRST PAGEANT IN NEWTON TONIGHT

400 Are in Cast of Drama That Depicts Founding of City and Its Progress

The first performance of Newton's great Tercentenary pageant, "Newton, the City Beautiful," marking the culmination of weeks of preparation on the part of the pageant committee and the great numbers of citizens co-operating with it, will take place this evening at the Newton Centre Playground.

The pageant will be presented again tomorrow and Thursday evenings and due to the apparent public demand, the committee is considering the possibility of giving an additional performance Friday evening.

The pageant was written and directed by the Rev. Chester Arthur Drummond of Newton and is described as "a pageant drama commemorating the establishment of Newton and its part in founding of a free government in the United States of America." It consists of four episodes and includes a cast of 400 persons, a chorus of 131 and an orchestra of 55 pieces. James K. Houghton, well known vocalist, sings the leading role, that of Chief Waban.

The dramatization includes the four episodes entitled "Newton and the Indians, Old and Quaint," "The Town Meeting Period 1776," "The Village Green, Then a Corner 1834-1860," and "A Newton Home Year 1930."

The cost of staging the production was $15,000, appropriated for the purpose by the board of aldermen. Those appearing in the cast are attired in colorful costumes many of them actually worn by Newton's early settlers and saved for the purpose by their descendants. A stage coach 165 years old appears in the train of episodes and replicas of an old steam engine.

Two Sets of Triplets Thrive on Diet of Milk

Two sets of triplets, one set in Cambridge and the other in Taunton, Mass., are alive and healthy on a diet of "mothers' milk" furnished by the Directory, Inc., of 270 Commonwealth ave.

The Cambridge triplets are Priscilla Maxwell, Anne Clark and John Frederick Gunther, the parents being Mr. and Mrs. John Gunther of 9 Hilliard pl. The Taunton triplets are Albert, Alfred and Arthur Meader.

The Directory for Mothers' Milk is a philanthropic organization operated to conserve child life. It is the first time since the organization came into existence that two sets of triplets were cared for at the same time.

The Cambridge triplets were born at the Cambridge Hospital this week. The Taunton triplets are older.

The Directory, Inc., for Mothers' Milk is a philanthropic institution which is operated by a group of public spirited women. Mrs. Bayard Warren is in charge of the institution, which had perfected a dried milk product that has been passed by the health authorities of Boston.

"I take pleasure in acknowledging the debt which the community owes to the Directory, Inc.," said State Health Commissioner George H. Bigelow, today. "This institution makes 'mothers' milk' available for sick infants that would otherwise be without this milk. When the need comes it is frequently not a question of money but a question of organization without which, at any cost, the need might well not be met."

LOWER EDISON RATES URGED

Samuel Silverman, corporation counsel of the city of Boston, declared today, before the Public Utilities Commission, that a reduction in rates of the Edison Electric Illuminating Co. was warranted from an examination of the company's business for the past few years.

Silverman stated that the hearing has made an exhaustive examination up to January 1 of this year. He asked for accounts of the company to May 31 and also for data of business and profits of other companies. The information was promised by S. Manley Eves, counsel for the Edison Company. Up to now the cases of the consumers seeking lower rates has been handled by Wyeth C. Marshall.

Chairman Henry S. Atwill announced that the hearings would be speeded up after the case is resumed on June 24 and that the commission will sit until all evidence is in and arguments have been heard.

In Old Boston—No. 273

Massachusetts Tercentenary, 1930

The old Hancock House, for years the Hancock Tavern, stood in Corn Court, off Faneuil Hall sq., until 1902, when it was razed to make room for a part of the Massachusetts Building, fronting in State st., at No. 60. J. H. Whicher, well known to Bostonians who liked good living, kept the place at the time this photograph was taken. Part of the Boston Tea Party Pint was hatched in this building and it has even been said that the tea party raiders dressed as Indians in the building. The best opinion now is that this was done elsewhere.

Gold Star Mothers at Quentin's Grave

Chateau Thierry, France, June 3 (AP)—Field flowers from around the grave of Quentin Roosevelt were gathered today by the gold star mothers now on a pilgrimage here to the graves of their own sons who died on the field of battle. Many of the women placed the flowers in their Bibles to be preserved as precious mementoes.

The mothers drove to the grave of the young airman and to Thiaucourt cemetery this morning. Later they were received by French officials at the city hall after they had decorated a monument to the French war dead.

Yachts for Model Regatta

Getting ready for the first skirmish of the model yacht regatta, which will be held at the Frog Pond on June 14. This is all preliminary to the finals to be held on June 29. The photographer caught these two yachts on Mystic Lake, just off the Medford Boat Club. (Staff photo.)

YOUNG SAILORS FALL IN LINE

With 25 enthusiasts already entered in the Model Yacht regatta to be held June 29, sponsored by the Boston Evening American and under the auspices of the Boston Model Yacht Club and the Community Service, it is expected at least 100 models will line up for the starting gun.

Preliminary races will be held June 14 on the Frog Pond, but entries are not necessary in this for eligibility in the big Charles river regatta. Preliminary events will include two classes, those under 17 and those between 17 and 21.

All entries for the big event should be sent in as soon as possible.

Come on, you young sailors! Send in your entry now and be sure you are eligible for the big race. You can send them to either F. L. Pigeon at 131 Coleridge st., East Boston, or to the Community Service at 739 Boylston st.

And don't forget, the Boston American is offering sterling silver trophies to the winners in each of the four classes. Your boat may win! Send your entry now, even if your boat is still under construction.

Seek to Identify Body

Police of Skowhegan, Me., last night were requested to aid Boston police to identify the body of a young man found yesterday floating in the Charles river basin opposite the end of Dartmouth st.

12TH ARREST IN STOCK FRAUDS

A 12th man, Abraham J. Levy, 32 of Millbury st., Worcester, was under arrest today in connection with the $2,000,000 alleged stock fraud involving sale of Page & Shaw securities.

Levy was charged with misrepresentation, fraud and false pretense on complaint of Carrie M. B. Denson of Groton, Ct. He will be turned over to Connecticut authorities after a formal arraignment in Worcester district court.

An early trial in Middlesex Superior Court is scheduled for the other 11 defendants who, the government charges, swindled 35,000 buyers.

Fireman Discovers Wife Victim of Gas

Returning to his home in Woburn to enjoy a day with his family yesterday, William H. Tobin engineer attached to headquarters of the Boston fire department, broke into the house after receiving no response to his ringing and found his wife, Violet, 34, in the kitchen, overcome by gas.

Investigation revealed that Mrs. Tobin had retired to bed after lighting the gas beneath a pot of coffee on the stove. She fell asleep, police believe, and the coffee boiling over extinguished the flames of the gas burner.

DEMOCRAT GAIN FORECAST BY ROOSEVELT

Unemployment and Dry Law Will Be Major Issues in Fall, Says New York Governor

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

With unemployment and prohibition as the major issues commanding the people's interest, the Democratic party is certain to make substantial gains in both the Senate and House in the coming congressional elections.

Such was the confident prediction made by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, who today is visiting Boston relatives and friends preparatory to attending the wedding tomorrow of James Roosevelt, his son and Harvard senior, and Miss Betsy Cushing, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harvey D. Cushing of Brookline.

TARIFF ISSUE

Although loath to insinuate his political opinions into the national situation Governor Roosevelt enumerated the issues of the campaign in this order of importance:

(1) Unemployment.
(2) Prohibition.
(3) The tariff.
(4) Farm relief.

"On the basis of them," he said, "it is quite evident, I believe, that the gains to be made in both Senate and House will be substantial."

Of unemployment he said:

"While conditions have not grown apparently worse, they have not materially improved. Our latest reports in New York were that April showed a slight recession over March but that May is holding its own.

"Every city and town in New York is co-operating manfully with the State of New York in providing employment and, as a result, the governments are expending more than ever before. We expect a general improvement this summer. But what the fall and winter will bring is more than we could attempt to predict with safety, and, I assume, the same situation exists in New England.

PEOPLE DISILLUSIONED

"The people are thinking in a non-nie more than in political terms. They feel they have been disillusioned. In short, they believe that the elaborate promises made in 1928 and 1929 of 'four more years of unexampled prosperity' were entirely political."

He was asked his opinion of the effect upon prohibition of the recent declaration of such conspicuous drys as Justice of Washington, Wesson of Montana and Sye of North Dakota that they will go in any anti-prohibition direction which the people of their states might teach. He replied:

"I must refrain, as I promised myself, from engaging in a specific discussion of national issues. I believe, however, that prohibition will play an important part in the elections. I stand on the New York State platform on which I was elected and which declared that the solution of prohibition lies in the return of the issue to the states."

Pet Nanny Gets the Neighbors' Goats in Mattapan

FOLKS BUTT IN ON GOAT

It's a case of "Margaret" versus the Neighbors.

Margaret," a goat, pastured in the backyard of her owner, Dempsey Donofrio, Kennebec st., Mattapan, is testing her case. She now awaits the decision of the health authorities in this instance the Mattapan health authorities.

She is believed to be the only nanny goat pastured within the precincts and was purchased and brought home by Donofrio when he heard goat's milk was most healthful for his baby.

Mattapan police were attracted to Margaret's peaceful basis when neighbors, fearing she contagious to her sex, would hurt their affairs, complained.

Learning Donofrio had no permit to keep the goat, police complained to health authorities. According to Deputy Health Commissioner Thomas J. Donnellon, city ordinances require a permit which may be granted if the goat is kept penned in her own yard. If refused permit the animal will receive the period if a sanitary inspector finds conditions are satisfactory.

Donofrio and his children want the goat. The neighbors want Margaret taken away. "Margaret" doesn't want anything except a home and plenty of food.

A complaining neighbor is Dorothy Davis, of 114 Kennebec st., Mattapan. She just doesn't think it right for anybody's goat to be in a lot next to her home. Another is Florence Sanders, eight years old, who declared that the welfare of her angora cat would be greatly increased if said goat was located so far distant parts.

Florence Sanders, 8, with her pet Angora. She fears the goat in the next yard will harm the cat, and is in the ranks of those who want the goat abolished.

Four Resign Posts on Harvard Faculty

Four resignations from the faculty of Harvard University were announced yesterday, with 351 appointments and reappointments.

Paul Martin, S. M. M. D., has resigned as Arthur Tracy Cabot fellow in surgery, effective April 1. Roger Sherman Foster as assistant professor of law; Harold Broadfield Warren as instructor in freehand drawing, and Karl Worth Bigelow as instructor in economics, tutor in sociology and social ethics.

Ask Probe of Judge

Washington, June 3 (U.S.)—Congressional investigation of Federal Judge Harry B. Anderson of Western Tennessee was called for in a report filed by the House judiciary committee.

Will Honor Pinanski

Plans have been completed for the reception and dinner, Thursday evening, at the Copley-Plaza, in honor of Samuel Pinanski, prominent figure in the motion picture industry in New England.

Head of Empire State Here for Wedding

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, arrived in Boston last night to attend the wedding of the governor's son, James, Harvard senior, to Miss Betsy Cushing of Brookline. Gov. Roosevelt and his mother are stopping at the Ritz Carlton. The wedding will take place tomorrow.

'CAUGHT SHORT' AT LOEW'S STATE IS YEAR'S MOST AMUSING COMEDY

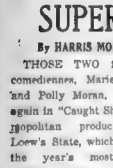
MARIE AND POLLY ARE SUPERB

By HARRIS MORGAN

THOSE TWO first rate comediennes, Marie Dressler and Polly Moran, are at it again in "Caught Short," Cosmopolitan production at Loew's State, which ranks as the year's most amusing comedy. Never have this pair been seen to more advantages, and never have there been more whole-hearted laughs in eight or nine reels of film.

• • •

CHUCK RIESNER did the direction in this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture and did it uncommonly well. It begins with one violently entertaining scene, it ends with the audience in hysterical laughter. In between is the infinitely humorous tale of how two rooming house landladies played the stock market, how they went up in the world, and how they came down. Eddie Cantor's amusing book, "Caught Short," suggested the plot, perhaps it did, but the film is riotously funny in its own right. Not since the talkies began has there been such a rattle and bang, knockabout comedy.



Marie Dressler

IMAGINE MISS DRESSLER and Miss Moran fighting over a skinny chicken for the dinner of their boarders, observe them holding a party in the best parlor with incidental songs and imitations; hearken to the star boarder taking a bath with the aid of a sponge, a bowl and a pitcher. And for comic contrast, witness the emergence of these two belligerent ladies into wealth; consider their onslaught on an Atlantic City hotel, and their visit to outdo each other in display. And not one of these scenes is being drawn out; each one begins amusingly, leads to a crescendo of comedy and ends just on the right note.

• • •

MAKE NO MISTAKE, "Caught Short" has no serious intent; it merely means to amuse the spectators, and it certainly does so. Not within months has an audience laughed so violently at a film. And with good reason. Even the dialogue is extraordinarily funny; the linguistic blunders of Miss Moran vie with the amplemoments in which Miss Dressler outdoes herself in invective directed toward the feral boarding-house. Many a film has been amusing in spots but none this year or in any year within easy memory has been quite so hilarious as this. The actors have been well cast, down to the least "bit" they have been assigned lines that are really laughable, and scenes and situations that play havoc with the funny bone.

• • •

MANY A SPECTATOR, witnessing "Caught Short" will go home wondering whether Miss Dressler or Miss Moran is the better actress. And this is a moot question, for they are both quite immitable in their separate styles of comedy. Moreover, "Caught Short" has a love interest, too, and this is capably taken care of by Anita Page and Charles Morton. But unlike the case of most films that name romance never halts or slackens the comedy. It is part and parcel of it, and so cleverly done is that the steady current of laughter never stops.

• • •

IT IS A DOWNRIGHT pleasure to recommend such a sparkling screen comedy; it is even more of a pleasure to see it, to watch Miss Dressler and Miss Moran disporting themselves in poverty, to witness their rise to riches, and their ultimate downfall. No wonder those who have seen it declare that no comic talkie has ever quite matched "Caught Short" for sheer entertainment.

When Every Day Was Gay

THE LATEST MODEL

DAVID V. BUSH RAPS DOCTORS IN FIRST OF LECTURES

America, the sick nation on earth, Dr. Bush said, and its death rate is mounting faster than that of any other nation in the world because the medical profession has neglected preventive medicine and have concentrated on the curative sciences. And for this one reason more than any other, he declared, the world is losing faith in the medical profession.

Operations are not necessary, Dr. Bush said, and cases in which necessary American people are dying every year are because Americans can not find a doctor in their home town any other place on earth. Besides, the profession does not get at the seat of the trouble which is constipation, he declared. In fact only confidence fighting the publication of appendix operations had caused doctors to cease operating and they [illegible] operations immediately when the [illegible] plans of [illegible] of the [illegible] disappear if appendix will return to its [illegible] position and doctors will have a dependable source of income.

"So you see, doctors are pretty good business men, too," he concluded.

Vividly Dr. Bush drew for his audience the picture of an agonized mother holding her child through a siege of diphtheria. The worry and anxiety of a parent watching while the long night hours by a child's bedside, while it turned and tossed and moaned in fevered semi-consciousness were painted in broad, sweeping strokes by Dr. Bush.

"And," Dr. Bush thundered, "medical science has known for hundreds of years that diphtheria can be cured by water within 24 hours."

Man is a spiritual being and not a material being, Dr. Bush asserted, and therein medical men have erred for they have failed to understand or accept the fact that medicine alone cannot cure if the mind does not will to be cured.

"Doctors have failed to keep us well," Dr. Bush charged, "and the only explanation for it is that they either don't know how or they have bamboozled us."

The greater part of Dr. Bush's lecture was given over to a discussion of the functions and effects of the subconscious mind. He quoted widely from the writings of the late William James of Harvard and time and again during his lecture, especially during his treatment of the medical profession, he asserted that he had facts and statistics to back up his every statement and was prepared to show them to any who doubted him.

Man makes his own life, he said, man is creative and the fear of God and death does more to deter a man's success than any other single thing.

Dr. Bush concluded his opening lecture with a demonstration of inspirational and healing silence which will be a feature of his every lecture.

At his lecture this evening, Dr. Bush will discuss "Unfinished Suggestions; How to Train for Health; Foods as Medicine and Life Causes and Preventions of Disease."

'ALL QUIET' IS MOST REAL OF WAR FILMS

There is no doubt that "All Quiet on the Western Front," new film at the Majestic, is the most complete and realistic of all the war pictures. It has all the sweep of the Remarque book, the canvas. It fills with figures of fury is that of the far flung Western Front, where it was all so quiet one day that there was really nothing to report—nothing save a schoolboy shot to death as he reached for a butterfly on the battlefield.

And this is the sombre end to a sombre film—a motion picture masterpiece that strips war of all its glory, leaving not one thing behind but bleak battle and bleaker death. Here will be found none of the pictorial pageantry and high spirits of "The Big Parade" not even the bawdy mirth of "What Price Glory?" and not one single tinge of the distorted romance of "The Four Horsemen."

Those were pictures; this is war and battle and death that creeps unseen in the night. In those films, some slight tinge of all the old glory of old wars remained. In this, the glory is gone. Instead are screened filthy dressing stations, lumbering ambulances, emergency hospitals — and the torn hands of a French soldier hanging on a broken shard of barbed wire.

Only one war picture stands in comparison with "All Quiet" and that is "Journey's End." But those were Englishmen, and these are Germans; schoolboys out of the classrooms lured on to defend their land by the blatant boasts of professional patriots. Theirs is a simple story. They fight, they suffer and they die. Not a single one is left unharmed as the war goes booming down the Western Front. Such strong material needs strong handling, and the most outstanding triumph of the film is the direction of Lewis Milestone.

This man knows motion pictures and camera work. His shots swing and swirl, his lens moves like magic. Like the best of the Russians, he even may peer into the minds of his characters, show their thoughts as plainly as by the printed word.

Take for instance the character of the narrator of the tale, Paul Baumer, played by Lewis Ayres, a no more than average actor. As mirrored in the motion picture, Paul's character grows and comes more mature. In a dozen ways, Milestone probes the young schoolboy's mind, mirrors what he thinks—and it is this underscurrent of unspoken thought that does more for "All Quiet" than all its dialogue.

With the other boys and with "Kat," whom Louis Wolheim plays, Milestone has been quite as successful. He uses their mobile faces to paint the futility and horror of war, he shows them in battle, on leave, dying in the ditches of Flanders, limping about the streets of Berlin with a leg gone.

Read the roster of the names John Wray, Raymond Griffith, George Summerville, William Farnell, Walter Browne Rogers.

For the rest, the film is a sweeping spectacle of battle that never ends while [illegible] Erich Maria Remarque's Western Front that drains the arts of new classes of schoolboys each year. It stands supreme as one of the two best pictures of the war. It stands alone as an argument for peace.

'HELL HARBOR' AT ORPHEUM

Lupe Velez in her first all-talking picture, "Hell Harbor," and Loew's Vaudeville Road Show, "Eton Days," comprise an exceptionally entertaining screen and stage combination at the Orpheum this week

"Hell Harbor" brings one back to those glamorous days when pirates really had cutlasses and black-eyes. Out of the frustration of her father's attempt to marry her to the traders comes Lupe Velez' true love—an American, handsome and bold.

On stage "Eton Days" provides diversified entertainment. This is the latest presentation from the Capitol Theater. Bobby Barry and Dick Lancaster, comedians, head the unit.

Christy and Nelson, another comedy pair, please with their comedy equilibristic bit. Other participants are the Three Keens sisters, harmony quintette; Rollo and Peters, dancers; Bob Carbaugh, ukulele artist; Carolean, novelty dancer, and a batch of Chester Hale girls.

WILLIAM POWELL TO APPEAR IN NEW VAN DINE STORY

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service)

Los Angeles, June 3—William Powell departed for London to visit his pal, Ronald Colman, in a satisfied state of mind. S. S. Van Dine, whose mystery thrillers have put Bill right among the big time names, has just put on the market a new novel called "The Scarab Murder." The ink wasn't dry before Paramount purchased it for their Philo Vance.

Another literary purchase by Paramount is "Brook Evan," chosen to star Ruth Chatterton. Ruth, who has been recuperating at Malibu from her recent illness, is making tests for the Susan Glaspell novel which becomes "The Right to Love." Dorothy Arzner, who emerged from the "Just So and So" class of directors to one of the first-class ones with her work on "Sarah and Son," will again direct Miss Chatterton.

THE DRESSMAKERS are doing a rushing business, what with the opening of "Florodora Girl," Marion Davies' picture, tomorrow night and the gala evening following at George Olsen's club. I never heard so much talk of clothes in my life. I have had described to me at least 15 different new costumes that will be worn for the first time tomorrow night. The film celebrities have been promised ample protection so that they need not fear having their trimmings torn or their orchids disarranged. There will be plenty of protection so that no one will either be crowded off the sidewalk or tied up in the traffic.

• • •

HERE ARE A FEW little notes of interest which we heard over Operation Day: The removal of Al Jolson with his goods and chattels to the United Artists lot, where he will do "Son of Gun," his next picture. Lily Damita, who created the feminine role in the New York stage production, will arrive to play opposite Al. What a list of celebrities there will be on the U. A. lot with Florenz Ziegfeld, Al Jolson, Irving Berlin, Lily Damita, Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks who arrived home from his European jaunt yesterday. As other little piece of news we hear is that Jack Haley who was in the hospital four weeks runs home and stayed two days. He was rushed back for an appendix operation. I call that playing in hard luck.

• • •

COME WHAT MAY, Adolphe Menjou has been definitely chosen as the unhappy husband in "Sincerity." Playing husband roles should be right in Adolphe's back yard, since he made one of his most conspicuous successes with Ernest Lubitsch in "The Marriage Circle." Universal in addition to Adolphe has John Stahl to direct "Sincerity."

• • •

LEWIS MILESTONE, whose "All Quiet on the Western Front" is the most noteworthy screen of the year up to now, is expected back to make two pictures for Universal. Give Milestone a picture without any women and he is right in his element. He is not so good on these romantic dramas, so I hope when he does come back Universal will not put him on any sob stuff. Speaking of directors, Roland V Lee will direct "The General" with Walter Huston. What a long time Roland Lee has been with Paramount. Another director, Fred Newmeyer, leaves tonight for New York to direct "Best People," Avery Hopwood's play Frances Goldwyn, who was then Frances Howard, made her seat success in this charming comedy drama on the stage.

FU MANCHU IN NEW THRILLS AT SCOLLAY

The feature picture on the screen of the Scollay the current week is "The New Adventure of Dr. Fu Manchu." It brings many of the thrills known to filmland. Regardless of the fact that, in a previous picture, Fu Manchu was apparently dead at the finish, he is very much alive here, and up to entirely new forms of torture and cruelty in his latest exploits.

The vaudeville program is one of the best seen here in a long time. "Romance of the Dance," a novel offering which features George Griffin, Rosetta, the Ward Sisters and Johnny Sanna, is well received, as are Cardiff and Wales in their comedy offering, "Divorced." Jones and Rea in their sketch, and Bob Capron in "The Mural Man" are entertaining.

The Gould Girls, in their fifth week at the Scollay, again are seen in a series of song and dance numbers. Leicel and Kina, athletes, and George Moore in a comedy juggling act complete the bill.

Here and There

BOWDOIN—Norma Shearer in "The Divorcee"; John Gilbert in "Redemption." Cabaret night on Wednesday.

RUNYON SAYS

by Damon Runyon

New York, June 3—Has it ever occurred to you that Herr Max Schmeling, the Black Uhlan of the Rhine, is trusting plenty to the American spirit of fair play, if any?

He is as much a contender for the heavyweight championship of the world as Sharkey is. I mean to say they are out in the contending business on the night of June 12 dead even.

Sharkey isn't the champion, and neither is Herr Max. So far as the title is concerned at this time there are no rights and privileges on either side.

And yet Schmeling, a German, is fighting Sharkey, an American on American soil, and will have in there an American referee and American judges.

Furthermore Schmeling, a German, has been forced to sign a contract agreeing that in the event he wins the title he will defend it in a return on American soil, and presumably again with an American referee, and American judges, because nothing to the contrary has been written into the contract.

And I might add that Schmeling has at no time, either in the negotiations for the Milk Fund show with Sharkey, or in the negotiations over the contract to defend the title if he wins it, offered the faintest suggestion that it might be a courtesy to him to permit him, or his country, some sort of representation in the official lineup.

Schmeling Has Faith in American Honesty

You must admit that the Black Uhlan has a heap of faith in our honesty, although you can jolly well imagine what would have happened if he had as much as whispered the thought that he ought to have something to say about the parties who will decide his fistic fate.

Suppose Max had piped up that they might give Der Vaterland the referee, or maybe one of the judges. Or if they couldn't see their way clear to that, let her have the timekeeper, or the official announcer, or perhaps a ticket taker.

Or even a few tickets inside the 20th row. You know very well what would have been muttered among the Americahners.

"Why," they would have said, "the guy ought to be runned out of the country. It's a dirty trick again our reppytashun for squar' dealin', and the whole world knows everybody gits a square deal over hyar. If you don't believe it, ask 'at scrub pan Looey Firpo, or Phil Scott!"

Of course the Black Uhlan would have merely been wasting his breath if he had squawked for half a vote somewhere along the line, but his complete silence was possibly indicate great confidence in himself.

Maybe he feels like ol' Tham Langford, the devastatin' bearcat from Boston, who was asked on occasion:

Foreign Fighters Get Square Deal

In one respect, the foreigners have all the best of it over here. They are speedily taken up by American promoters and exploited beyond their merits and, as a result, they prosper while better American fighters have a tough time getting work.

8 HEAVIES ON AMATEUR CARD

All roads tonight lead to Dilboy Field, West Somerville, where the Somerville City Employes' A. A. will inaugurate the outdoor amateur boxing season around Greater Boston.

The entry list is so large that Dick Merrick, chairman of the event, has decided to start the show at 7.30 o'clock. There will be at least 35 bouts.

The outstanding classes of this tournament are the 160-pound and heavyweight classes. With 16 entries in the middleweight division and eight in the heavyweight class, plenty of action amongst the heavy boys is assured.

B. C. Yearlings Win From St. Anselm's

Manchester, N. H., June 3—The Boston College freshmen nine, giving errorless support to Emile Choy, star Eaglet hurler, who struck out eight men, defeated St. Anselm School here yesterday, 8 to 1.

90,000 Are Expected to See Sharkey-Schmeling Bout

By JACK CONWAY

New York, June 3—William F. Carey, president of the New York Garden, announced today he had changed his seating plans for the Sharkey-Schmeling bout at the Yankee Stadium on June 12 so that 90,000 persons can witness the title match.

Jack Conway

"There won't be a vacant seat in the Yankee Stadium when Sharkey and Schmeling sweep into action," said Carey. "The demand for tickets has been tremendous. People will be at the ringside from all parts of the country. "I look for 5,000 persons from Boston alone. If a ticket sale in the Hub has passed the $50,000 mark, Johnny Buckley tells me that Sharkey and Maloney anee drew $56,000 in a bout in Boston and that this is the record for receipts in the Hub.

"Boston alone will pay more than $50,000 to see the Sharkey-Schmeling tussle, while the sale in other parts of New England will also be huge."

Tickets in the first 25 rows have all been sold. At the Garden box office there is a mad scramble for tickets from the thirtieth to the fortieth row of the ringside. Carey told this writer he has purchased tickets for a personal party which runs as far back as the 50th row of the ringside. These tickets sell for $26.25.

Mrs. William Randolph Hearst has also purchased a large block of tickets which run in the rear rows of the ringside sections.

The rush is also on for the $13.65 and $5.26 tickets.

Rival Heavies in Final Stages

The Milk Fund committee decided popular prices would assure a sellout and at the same time put the fund a substantial profit.

The rival heavyweights have now entered the final stages of the training grind.

Sharkey was to resume his training this afternoon following a days layoff. Jack will now keep on the work day until next Tuesday when he will bring his training to a close. He will probably remain at Orangeburg until the morning of the bout when he will motor into New York.

Schmeling intends to stay at his camp at Endicott until the day of the title battle and will come to New-York by plane.

Sharkey continues to rule a favorite in the betting. The odds are now 7 to 5 on the American champion. Very few substantial wagers have been made as the big bettors are waiting for the final word from the rival training camps.

Some large chunks of Schmeling money are expected to make their appearance at the last minute which will cut down the odds. The chances are Sharkey will be only a 6 to 5 favorite at ring time.

Schmeling Spends Day on Golf Links

Endicott, N. Y., June 3 Spring came to these hills today but Herr Schmeling was playing a game of golf on yonder distant links and could not be tempted to do any boxing.

With Herr Jacobs away in New York combing the gymnasiums for sparring partners any news here was practically a total Lax.

There has been a great deal of mystery about Schmeling's weight. From the waist up he strips like a heavyweight. From the waist down he is a light heavyweight.

Joe Jacobs has permitted the impression to get abroad that his schlager is close to 190. If he is, then appearances are deceiving. I should guess about 184 and there is still a week to go. It may be a very hot week.

The training cabinet is satisfied with Schmeling's physical condition. The problem is to keep him on edge. Max could stand a few more long boxing programs.

HARVARD CREWS ON THAMES

Red Top, Conn., June 3 (AP)—Four Harvard crews took to the Thames river today for a three-mile practice row in preparation for the Yale-Harvard races June 20. Another practice will be held early this evening.

Yale Varsity and Jayvee Crews on River

Gales Ferry, Ct., June 3 (AP)—Resuming practice after a Sunday holiday, the Yale varsity and junior varsity crews rowed two miles on the Thames and were taken out on their iver for another workout later on.

U. S. Courtmen Fail to Show as Advertised

Brussels, June 3 (AP)—Paul De Borman, president of the International Tennis Federation, in a statement today, expressed deep regret at what he characterized as the American Federation's action toward Belgian championships. Four prominent American players had been promised, he said, and none appeared.

Monsieur De Borman deprecated the fact that William T. Tilden had decided to play in Berlin instead of Brussels.

"It was Bill himself who insisted on being booked for the Brussels championship," he said, "and to comply with his wish we advanced the dates of our tournament one week. "We are not used to such proceedings here."

Sarazen Out for British Open Title

New York, June 3 (AP)—Gene Sarazen former open and professional golf champion of the United States, will try again for the British open golf championship.

The long-hitting pro, who finished third in the United States open last year, two strokes out of a tie for first place, was runner-up to Walter Hagen in the 1923 British open, completing 72 holes of play with a score of 294 to 292 for the champion.

For some time Sarazen has wavered in a decision on a trip to Moyaka for the British open. Suddenly he made up his mind and will sail tonight.

SHERRY IS SURE OF WINNING

Jack Sherry, heavyweight champion of Ohio will step into his last day of heavy training confident of victory on Thursday night at the Arena he is punching the championship bubble of Bob "Bibber" McCoy.

They will clinch in a two falls out of three smash match that is expected to produce one of the wildest mat battles in years.

Sherry mixed fighting with wrestling in his sensational bouts with Joe Malcewicz and Henri Diglane, and since he and McCoy are bitter rivals, another rough and tumble bout is in prospect.

Count George Zarynoff, wizard of the mat, will take on Jack Ganson of California in the featured preliminary bout while in the opening matches, Stanley Pinto will be paired with Axel Anderson, and Bill Rudy with Paddy Mack.

Support of Public Is Big Asset to Jack Sharkey

By JACK SHARKEY
American Heavyweight Champion

Orangeburg, N. Y., June 3 At no time in my boxing career has the public been so solidly behind me as since I started to get ready for my 15-round world's heavyweight championship battle with Max Schmeling, which will be staged at the Yankee Stadium, New York city, on June 12.

It has been very gratifying to me to know that the New York public is according me such hearty support in my coming tussle.

Ever since the Schmeling match was closed I have felt very confident in my ability to win. This feeling of confidence has increased as great friendly crowds have greeted me everywhere I have gone and have urged me to conquer the German champion.

I realize that the public's interest in me is due to the fact I shall be the standard bearer of the United States in the coming international match.

For years America has been supreme in boxing as is true of most other forms of athletics. The fans look to me to maintain America's position. I recognize the great task that has been placed on my hands and I shall try my best to live up to the highest traditions of American boxing.

Trip Home Helped Relieve Strain

I am back working hard at my training camp. I broke the routine of training a week ago by making a hurried trip to my home in Boston. At that time I had been training for four weeks and was a little bit too far advanced in my work.

Two days at home relieved the strain of training and Mrs. Sharkey and myself an opportunity to enjoy the company of our children. One of the hardest things about getting ready for a boxing bout is the long days spent away from the wife and children.

This is the reason why, after several of my big bouts in New York Mrs. Sharkey and myself have started home at midnight. An all-night motor trip is enjoyable when home is the destination.

From now until I end training I shall keep busy going at a lively clip. I am already in good condition and could step into the ring tonight if necessary.

Without taking any chances of going stale, I shall devote most of my time to boxing from now on. Road work and gym exercises have built up my wind. I have done much boxing here, but I shall do more.

I am fortunate in having as sparring partners Johnny Grosso, Paul Cavalier and King Solomon. They are all good boxers and have been of great assistance to me.

BROOKS NAMED MEDFORD COACH

Edward M. Brooks, former Medford and Georgetown athlete, has been appointed to succeed Jerry Lyons as assistant coach at Medford High school at a salary of $2800.

Brooks was graduated from Medford High in 1921, and from Georgetown in 1925. In addition to his athletic prowess, Brooks has had experience as teacher-coach at Georgetown Preparatory School.

Lyons resigned his position voluntarily, it being understood that he has had several offers to coach at other schools.

Columbia Defeats Penn in 10th, 4-3

New York, June 3—Columbia closed its home baseball season with a 10-inning victory today over Pennsylvania, 4 to 3.

It was the second meeting of Columbia and Pennsylvania this season in the Eastern intercollegiate wars.

Tom McLoughlin, Columbia third baseman, broke up the game with a double in the 10th, scoring Johnny Balquist, who had singled. The victory avenged Columbia's earlier defeat by Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, 7 to 1.

The defeat put Pennsylvania out of the running for the league championship and apparently clinched the flag for Dartmouth. Though Yale still has a chance to tie for top honors.

PLAY IN TITLE TOURNEY IS BRILLIANT

By BILL GRIMES

At the conclusion of the first [illegible] of the Women's Eastern championships at The Country Club yesterday, Miss Edith [illegible] was only four strokes [illegible] from the leader, Mrs. Helen E. Sutton, the former N[illegible] and Eastern titleholder. [illegible] of more importance [illegible] the second low [illegible] W. G. A. play-[illegible] who participated had [illegible] only two [illegible] M. [illegible] E. H. Baker [illegible] a four-time winner of the local district title.

With the above facts in mind, even to an outsider, it [illegible] strange that Miss Stevens was not [illegible] of the Eastern interest [illegible]

Bill Grimes

Miss Stevens put together a 18-48 for her 90. She was only four over 44 going to the seventh hole but a 6-5—7 finish on the outward round made her one over 44 at the turn. She came in well until she reached the last two holes. Again Miss Stevens was four over 44 going to the finishing hole, but ran afoul of a pair of sixes to take a 41.

Due to the fact that for years he has been playing with a hope to put a Sid district team. Th[illegible] Miss Stevens has had the opportunity to bear down' during the spring team match series [illegible] She was [illegible] and is [illegible] formidable on her home course. The Country Club where [illegible] championship will be decided.

Miss Stevens Deserves Place on Team

Without attempting to critici[illegible] it is possible for the [illegible] of the Boston Interclub team it must be admitted that three of the fifteen players chosen [illegible] have played enough this season to warrant membership. And it is a cinch that some of the [illegible] players have not been as consistent winners as they were [illegible] Tuesday seasons.

At the policies of her physician, Miss Ruth Batchelder has withdrawn from the Inter-city team. In all probability, Miss Edith Stevens of The Country Club will be [illegible] to fill the vacancy caused [illegible] the withdrawal of Miss Batchelder.

Diamond Pick-Ups

It may be true as most baseball men contend that no team can be successful [illegible] a [illegible] but it certainly helps [illegible] every time it does make use of twin killings as successful.

The Red Sox this season are leading the American League in both double and triple plays and they are deep in the cellar.

The two major leagues ought to agree on baseball rules. A pitcher in the American League who doesn't come to a full stop before delivering a ball to a batter while first or second base is occupied commits a balk.

So such rule is enforced in the National League. A ball that [illegible] pitcher can [illegible] to [illegible] batter in the National League is usually two bigger in the Yankee Stadium.

The two rules [illegible] the same [illegible] and should enforce them alike.

Both Boston ball clubs have a higher percentage today than they had at this time last season.

Smead Jolley, rookie White Sox [illegible] promised when he was [illegible] batting slump at the [illegible] that he would get [illegible] with all the hurlers who were running him [illegible]

He has kept his word. He is hitting the ball as any player in the league could now and as a [illegible] seem to look alike to him.

Three times this season the Yanks have won four games in a row only to have their streak broken by the lowly Red Sox.

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

TEAM PROVES IT HAS LOT OF COURAGE

By JOE CASHMAN

Following their poor showing in the World Series last fall, charges were broadcast far and wide that the Chicago Cubs had displayed the white feather and folded up against the Mackmen.

In other words, it was alleged that the Windy City athletes were quitters.

Joe Cashman

[illegible] of a team [illegible] warmed up [illegible] season [illegible] McCarthy [illegible] have suffered far more than enough hardship [illegible] tune to [illegible] the spirit of [illegible] courageous [illegible] team ever assembled and [illegible] seed of crabbing wide open they have touched at [illegible] versity and today are up in second place, only a short distance back of the pace setting Dodgers.

The tougher their luck, the harder they have fought back ever since the opening of the campaign.

Last week they experienced two of the hardest blows to ever befall a big league team. Hal Carlson, one of their two winning pitchers up to that time, was stricken with stomach ulcers on [illegible] and [illegible] out of the [illegible] if not for the [illegible] of the season.

Cubs Fail to Break Under Hard Blows

Since that time, the champions have played their best ball of the year, losing but one game and jumping up two places in the standing.

Their great work in the face of so much tough luck proves conclusively that they are second to none as far as courage is concerned. It also proves that Joe McCarthy is a born leader and one of the greatest and gamest managers in the game.

The Cubs will play three games with the Braves in the series, which starts at the Wigwam this afternoon. They may or may not gain the edge. The Tribe is playing much better ball now than it was when it broke even with the champions in a two-game series out in the Windy City last month. But you may rest assured that the visitors will be out there fighting every minute of every game.

The engagement will offer local fans a fine opportunity to compare Walter Berger, Tribal home-run king, and Hack Wilson, long-distance hitting ace of the enemy.

Home Run Race Between Berger and Wilson

These two young men are rated as the greatest right-handed hitters in the game, now that Hornsby is on the hospital list. Wilson has hit 16 circuit drives to date, while Berger has 14 to his credit.

Capt. Charlie Grimm is on first yet, but Blair is at second, English regular shortstop in 1929, is at third, and Beck is at short.

TWO AMERICAN HORSES IN DERBY

The 19 probable starters in the great turf event include two American entries, William Woodward's Scout Second and A. K. Macomber's Parthenon.

Parthenon is a decided outsider at odds of 100 to 1 against, but Scout Second, winner of the recent Newmarket stakes, is considered one of the best of the "dark horses" despite the fact that the betting odds on him are 25 to 1 against.

A victory for Scout Second would give Mr. Woodward the distinction of owning the winners of both the Derby and its Kentucky namesake, Gallant Fox, which galloped to victory at Churchill Downs, is owned by Mr. Woodward.

Tradition has placed Sir Hugo Hirst's Diolite in the favorite's role at 5 to 2 against. Diolite won the Two Thousands Guineas and immediately became the choice for the Derby.

The record for the present course of 2:34 2-5 established by Call Boy in 1907 and equalled by Felstead the following year.

Insurance Huse Hirst 5 to 2
Rustom Pasha, Aga Khan, 15 to 2
Trows, Lord Astor, 100 to 9
Silver Flare, Maj. J. S. Courtauld, 100 to 6
Hairbreadth, Maj. H. Dixon, 15 to 1
Blenheim, Aga Khan, 15 to 1
Amber Star, H. F. Sackville, 15 to 1
Lord Lonsdale, Lonsdale, Tattersall, 25 to 1
Scout Second, William Woodward, 25 to 1
Dick Swiveller, Lord Woolavington, 25 to 1
Bargany, Lieut. Howard De Walden, 33 to 1
The Sponger, J. M. Viaston, 50 to 1
Never, G. H. Peck, 50 to 1
Sea Rover, A. K. Cox, 50 to 1
Grand Sultan, Lord Astor, 100 to 1
Lansdowne, Lord Islands, 100 to 1
Parthenon, A. K. Macomber, 100 to 1
Tetragon, T. Richards, 100 to 1

CHARLESTOWN LOSES TO TRADE

Trade School had two big innings against Charlestown High yesterday at Charlestown and trounced the Bunkerhillers 11 to 6.

The Traders gathered in a cluster of four runs in the first, all of which helped when Gill cracked out a homer with a couple on. Gumsky, the Trade catcher, belted out a complete circuit in the fifth.

In the next frame Trade pushed across five runs. There were eight boys up at bat and five of them scored.

A FIGHTING EAGLE

Long John Dixon, captain-elect of the Boston College football team, has decided to try his luck in the ring. He will make his debut as an amateur ringman in the Dilboy Post, V. F. W., show on June 11.

M'Kenney Will Let Dixon Enter Amateur Ranks

Dixon, who is the image of Phil Scott, wants to be a gentleman, scholar, and prize-fighter like Mr. Gene Tunney. Dixon has the first two qualifications already. The third remains to be proven.

Dixon has planned to enter the professional ring upon graduation and to start in collecting pin-money without preliminaries. But, after a few workouts in the gym, Dixon learned that it would be utter suicide for him to step into the pro ring before he had some testing and experience.

Coach Joe McKenney would just as leave not see his next captain going in the ring where anything is apt to happen. McKenney stated this morning that he would not forbid Johnny to fight, because that's Johny's private business.

And Joe will probably be at the ringside on the evening of June 11 when Dixie starts he long trek that he hopes will lead to the peak of pugilism.

Peabody Wins Over Danvers by 9 to 7

Peabody, June 3—Peabody high defeated Danvers high, 9 to 7, at Emerson Park yesterday by bunching hits at the opportune time. The visitors got 12 hits to the locals' 10 but Peabody managed to hit freely when there were men on base. Three of the home team hit three-baggers.

LYNN NOW AT TOP OF N. E. LEAGUE

Lynn moved into first place in the New England League by defeating the Lewiston Twins at the Lynn Stadium yesterday by the score of 11 to 6. It was Lynn's sixth straight victory.

The Lynn sluggers fell on Lefty Phelan for fifteen hits. Billie Marshall kept up his hitting streak, garnering three hits out of four. Weintraub, former Michigan U[illegible] varsity captain, also helped himself to three bingles.

Salem won its third straight, smearing Portland, last place team, to the tune of 11 to 5. The Marinors outhit the winners but errors by the losers caused their defeat.

Nashua defeated its old rival, Manchester, 7 to 5, in a well played game. Moncewicz, former Boston College shortstop, played a great game in the field, accepting 10 chances without an error and also had a perfect day at the bat, getting four out of four, including a double.

The schedule today calls for a doubleheader at Lynn with Salem the attraction, first game starting at 3 o'clock. Portland goes to Manchester, and Lewiston visits Nashua.

Salem has picked up a hard hitting catcher in Griggs and only last Saturday he made six hits out of six times at bat.

Chick Fraser, Revere boy, is having tough luck so far on the mound. He manages to hold his opponents to less hits than his own teams ets but something always happens to offset this and he loses.

Ora Corella, Quincy boy [illegible] playing third base for [illegible] Haven club of the Eastern [illegible] He played with Hartford last season and with Lynn in 1928.

Kuneeh, former Nashua outfielder, who went up to the International League, is now patroling the outfield for Providence.

Tom Whelan certainly knows his stuff. Starting the season with very little prospect for a good club he gathered a few good pitchers changed Marshall into an outfielder, shifted Weintraub to second base and has brought the team to the top of the pile. Last week they were in last place.

WALTHAM WINS IN THE 9TH, 5-2

With the score tied until the ninth inning, 2 to 2, Waltham came from behind at the Lynn Stadium yesterday afternoon and secured a rally of three runs, defeating Lynn Classical high, 5 to 2.

Classical inaugurated its initial try at bat with two runs and Waltham followed with one run in the second and another in the third.

From then until the ninth inning both teams tightened and not [illegible] was added.

Malden High Has Strong Claim on State School Title

TEAM BEATEN ONLY ONCE THIS YEAR

Schoolboy teams will close their season soon, and among the strong nines having a claim on the State crown is Malden high.

Ed Goodreau's athletes have one of the best records of the state nines, for they have played through most of a difficult schedule and have lost only one game to Medford.

Medford has a fast nine, and defeated Malden by a small score early in the year. Since then Malden avenged the loss by winning over its old rival.

Malden has a well balanced group, with a pair of thoroughly good pitchers, Johnny Kelley and George Beaman. The catcher, Johnny McCarthy, is a big rangy youngster with a lot of baseball brains, a good arm and the ability to hit. With either Kelley or Beaman, McCarthy forms a powerful battery.

Hub Schoolboys in Annual Track Meet

A Catholic high school league game is played this afternoon, although the race is over for the title, with Mission high holding the laurels. The champions play at Our Lady's high in Newton.

Some good Boston high school games are slated for this p. m. with Latin meeting Trade at Smith Playgrounds, Allston; East Boston going to Roger's Park in Brighton; Memorial facing B. C. high at the Heights; Mechanic Arts traveling to Dorchester and South Boston to Hyde Park.

JAMAICA WINS CLOSE BATTLE

Jamaica Plain High's nine nipped Mechanic Arts, 8 to 5, yesterday at North Brighton in a see-saw game in which one team and then the other held the lead.

Jamaica got a big inning in the sixth when with some choice hitting and some wild pegging to first an outfield error allowed Jamaica three runs.

Malden high is one of the strongest schoolboy nines in the State, and with a record of only one loss, is entitled to a place with the best nines in the State. The three players above have contributed largely to Malden's success on the diamond.

The BIG House

By JACK LAIT

to prison, he is thrown into the dungeon for sixty black days and blue nights. Morgan knew this. He was reconciled to it. This time he went into the solitary hole with a resolute will—they could not break him.

He felt assured now of Anne's love, he believed there would be a way for him to get out of prison—some miraculous way—but a way—which would leave him clean and free to take up the life of an honest man.

Word spread through the prison like a forest fire that Morgan the black sheep, was back. As they marched him through the cellhouse, stripped to the waist and barefooted, on his way to the cooler, he saw again the old familiar places and faces. Burke's glance flashed a regretful welcome to him.

No one spoke to him. There was a barely perceptible nod of the head here and there. Then Morgan's dark eyes found out Kent. As he looked at him he saw Kent's eyes grow wide with fear, and Morgan smiled—a faint, sardonic smile. He would have a lot to tell Kent—later. That would be his revenge!

But in his heart Morgan didn't hate Kent. After they had thrown him into his dark cell where he would spend many long, lonesome hours, he began to reflect on the vicissitudes of life. As a chance encounter sometimes changes the entire course of the span of a man, so had this undestined circumstance in which Kent planted the knife on him change the entire existence of Morgan.

He traced back each factor in the hazard scheme: the thirty days in the cooler . . . the hatred in his heart for Kent, which had caused him to take the desperate break at escape . . . the meeting with Ann Marlowe . . . the final impulsive confession of their mutual love . . . the warning by Ruby—the arrest from a chance source—for no self-respecting crook would work with cops.

"Everything must have a purpose," mused Morgan, philosophically. "Things look gloomy now. Back in prison now, I can clear myself forever. Had I married Anne, I would have always lived in deadly horror that some day I would be turned up—a fox. It would have been tougher, knowing how it would wreck her."

But he began to worry about her now. He could communicate with her in no way. Ruby would no doubt explain to her that he had been thrown into the horror-chamber as soon as they got him back to prison—or she would come to ask for him and find out for her own accord.

Or—would she come! Had she not had enough heart-hurt and humiliation already with outcast convicts? Possibly she would tear Morgan out of her life forever. Possibly she would be repelled against her love for him—he knew she loved him. But she was not born or built to throw herself away on a jailbird!

No, Morgan believed her—though in a dungeon, a disgrace even among convicts, he had faith that she would love him and he would yet justify that love. She had wired "Nothing matters."

Strange, Morgan constantly dreamt of his future happiness. Incongruous as it was, he could picture their little home . . . a cottage bathed in sunlight. Anne in her clean, crisp house dress, busy about the kitchen . . . he somehow pictured her making coffee and looking at him with smiling inquisitiveness as she said, "It's one lump—Mr. Everett?" . . . and they both laughed. Mr. Everett! . . . Yes, the house was bathed in sunlight, eternal sunlight . . . and then came the day of days and the little spare room in the house, the one with the fairies and the elephants and the bears and the giants painted on the wall would echo.

They wouldn't need much money. Just enough for the simple things of life. It would come in regularly and he would work hard. He must learn the value of money and she must keep a budget . . . like she did in the book. Morgan's black cell began to be illuminated with the aura of his future happiness. Nothing could discourage him henceforth. He only waited until he would communicate with Anne in some way—assure her of his love and receive her answer that she would wait for him!

Then a melancholy mood came over him. What right had he to ask this adorable, sensible, desirable woman to wait for him—to spend the better part of her life waiting until he, a number, had finished his punitive prison term? Think of the opprobrium she must bear—the girl of a convict! The smirk of Sergeant Conlin when he saw her on her way to her little bookstore, and when he asked, significantly:

"Well, Miss Marlowe, how are you today?"

"How does it feel to wait for your convict lover to finish his term?"

And in her own family circle—what she would have to bear!

Yet out of this miasma of forlorn thoughts always arose the sweet, smiling face of Anne. Her lips seemed to move in the one phrase:

"COURAGE! PATIENCE! FAITH!"

She, herself, was the quintessence of courage. Had she not borne many of these things before—for Kent, a man she really could love?

Yes, Morgan could see her now smiling bravely, confidently. He had lived in the other half of the world—among the racketeers, the killers, the crooks—but there he had learned to judge people for their worth, to read their concealed pages. He could not be mistaken in Anne! And how he wanted to tell her that she need never fear that she could be mistaken in him. So the days and nights went on and each hour Morgan's hope rose. Before, he had nothing worthwhile to wish for—now as each minute passed in the dungeon he could see growing brighter and brighter at the end of the time the culmination of it all.

Then one day, they came down and opened the door and found Morgan on his feet and able to walk out unaided. It is a wonderful thing, the effect of mind on spirit over body. Some have made a religion of it!

When they had allowed him to shave and clean up, he was taken before the warden. As he stood before the prison head, Morgan looked steadily into the other's eyes as he received his customary lecture. His face was pale and drawn, and there were deep shadows beneath his eyes, denoting the hardship he had encountered.

"You'll find it tougher here than ever, Morgan," said the warden. "The State has closed up jute mill and the men have nothing to do—no good, hard work to occupy them. You know what idleness does—I want you to watch your step."

Yes, sir," rejoined Morgan with a determination which caused Wallace, the captain of the yard, who stood beside him, to sneer. The warden gave Wallace a quick glance of disapproval.

"Morgan," the warden said sympathetic now, "I have always believed there was good in you. You were a fine partner before that knife was found on you—"

But, sir . . .

"Never mind—that is past. I want you to do the proper thing now. Set a good example for the others. You have personality, a certain influence. It will pay you—that's all."

As Wallace led him out, he sneered:

"The warden is too soft now. I got a bad record, Morgan. You won't take a thing off you. Keep the chalkline, or you'll get all the grief there is inside o' here."

"Yes, sir," said Morgan courteously. Then he added: "Takin' grief is nothin', Wallace. Makin' it is what hurts. I'll be such a model prisoner, it'll get on your nerves!"

SCOZZA A HARD PUNCHER

Lou Scozza, the crushing puncher from Buffalo, who returns to the Hub next Monday night to clash with Tony Shuceo of the North End, is regarded as the hardest hitting light heavyweight in the ring today and he anticipates a knockout victory in his Mechanic Building debut for Matchmaker A. A.

Twice Scozza has won referee decisions over Maxey Rosenbloom and the New York Boxing Commission regards the Buffalo boy as a outstanding contender for the crown.

Shuceo has been steadily forging to the front for the past few months and his decisive victory over Bob Jasse in his last bout stamped him as an outstanding fighter and for this reason, Eddie Mack was determined to afford him an opportunity to win universal recognition as a contender. Scozza will put the Hub entry far out in front.

JOHNSTON AND JONES WIN HARD MATCH

St. Germain, France, June 3 (US) Bobby Jones, ace of American golfers, and Harrison Johnston, American amateur champion, were forced to the 18th hole yesterday to win their special foursome match against two of France's premier professionals.

Jones and Johnson squeezed through with a 1 up victory by virtue of a brace of threes the Americans got on the seventeenth hole, after Andre Vaghano and Marcel D'Allemagne had squared the match on the fourteenth.

A large gallery followed the match over the beautiful St. Germain course.

D'Allemagne squared the match on the fifth shooting a birdie 2 while Vaghano put the Frenchmen one up on the ninth with a four against Bobby's and Johnson's fives.

On the inward turn however Jones and Johnson got down to work, Jones taking the eleventh with a birdie two and both Americans taking fours and threes on the fourteenth and seventeenth respectively.

On both the latter holes the Frenchmen needed one stroke more. They staved off an earlier defeat, however, by shooting a brace of fours in the Americans' fives on fifteenth.

ADVICE OF VIN RICHARDS IS AID TO LOTT

New York, June 3 (AP)—All because of a public criticism made by Vincent Richards, young George Lott of Chicago thinks the French will find him harder to beat in the Davis cup challenge round this year than last.

"It was funny," remarked Lott with a grin, "Richards wrote something about me in the paper while we were practicing in Philadelphia for the Davis cup matches with Mexico. Richards criticized my game.

"Well, the funny part of it was that he was working out with us there and the next day we played each other. I beat him. I think the scores were 6—1, 6—1."

"Do you know what it was he wrote about me? He said I lacked concentration."

"Well, he's right. That has been the trouble with me in a lot of my matches.

"It just happened that I read that article of Vinnie's the day before I played against him. Right there I began to concentrate.

"That's the only way to play this game—the way Billy Johnston used to play it and the way Helen Wills Moody does now. Play your best all the time, win by as much as you can—and then apologize if you have to."

"It would be a shame to have Bill on the sidelines at Paris," he said.

By winning the doubles and beating Jean Borotra in both of his singles matches, Lott thinks the United States has a good chance to regain the cup this year.

Raquel Flirts Openly With Farrell—Johnson Sues for Speedy Marriage

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Raquel Ewing exercises the charm of her lovely beauty to woo the lean, hard Jack Farrell away from Lily Hermann, to whom he was engaged. Johnson previously had been engaged to Lily, a girl who met and knew Joe's place, the Eldorado. One night, in the Eldorado, Raquel learns of money asking who she is. "Beautiful," he says. "Beautiful as a dream. But hard-boiled.

Chapter 6

Raquel flushed excitedly as she thought of the tall, slender stranger.

Suppose he had not been in Keno Joe's the night of Lily's summary trip across the border. Suppose he had come to the Eldorado the night before. Or the night after.

She, Raquel, would not then be in this train bound for Phoenix, for New York, for who knew what gaily carpeted fields of high adventure. She would be back in Hermosa, married to Bill Johnson. Or about to be married to him. Making ready for life in the big stone house he had promised to build for her on the ten acres out by Pueblo Creek. The place he had bought for Lily.

Lily was to be a one-room frame house. It had been no trouble at all, Raquel found, when a large stone house out of Johnson.

"I won't live in anything that that had to do with—with her," she told Johnson. Lily was always "her" between them.

"What do you want me to do?" the badgered cattleman asked plaintively. The changing moods of Raquel bewildered him.

"I want you to build me a stone house, Raquel. I deserve better than her."

Raquel Wins
Promised Stone House

The were sitting on the bench outside Pancho Rosa's adobe but Raquel rose, fluffed out the folds of her red green lawn dress, jumped at the flame-red cactus flower she had picked and the smoke of her black hair behind her left ear.

"I met a man up at Pete's store this morning," she said lazily. "He was buying a saddle studded with silver and leather with silver trim."

"His name's Farrell. Jack Farrel. He's an engineer. Something about mining. My, but he's handsome!"

"About our house—little Raquel," Johnson motioned her toward him. "If your heart is set on a stone house, stone it's got to be. You draw a picture of what you think you'd like to have and I'll send it on the Phoenix so the builders up there can draw the plans."

She wished that this great hulk of a woman would step and stand drag no and go about her business. She was going to meet Jack Farrell back in the manner who had called her Lily Brown. She meet in Keno Joe's gambling place. Here, with the music, gay eyes and the tongue that had sung kissed the Kiss Me Stone.

Raquel had been meeting Jack Farrel now for over a week. Came lately. That is the meetings were clandestine so far as Johnson was concerned. Raquel suspected everyone in Hermosa knew of them, except Johnson. And Pancho, but Pancho's eyes were as dark, placid as his daughter's and his daughter's eyes were of the richest velvet in Hermosa he had no time for idle gossip.

What was there about Farrel that drew her to him, a magnet from the east who had so much to say for her? He was compelling. Warm and vital and vibrant. He was not at all like Johnson, who always want me to ask him to know the feel of it under her fingers. His lips and face cutting and even when he talked in the most casual way. And his eyes! You simply could not help laughing with him.

Light of Heart
Raquel Thinks of Farrell

What was it Jack said?

"I've hung me hat under more different flags than any man of my age in this or any other country."

A fascinating man of the type of Jack Farrell would be want to hang from Hermosa, since Raquel said him. He had no doubt had enough hair-breadth escapes and adventures to make his blood like wine. Wine as was with her she want it to stay by his side, to go on and on. To Alaska, where he was thinking of prospecting, or one of the South American republics or Northern Africa, whither his fancy was flitting. Adventure. To go places. To see things — people. After all money was not worth so much as she had thought. Johnson had it. And here he was stumbling about in the dust of Hermosa. With the rest of the lizards and the scorpions. A blind toad in a dust puddle.

Farrell was waiting for her. By the crumbling adobe wall on which a bougainvillea vine has got the idea of how to silence Lily.

"I thought you'd passed me up, Raquita," he said, taking her quick slim hands in his lean brown ones. "It's been years since—" "Yesterday," she interrupted.

It was good to hear these things. Farrell loved her. She would like to listen to the caress on his lips. If were not that they must be going on, into the town. This meeting was not to be a clandestine one. She would make sure it would come to Johnson's ears. Johnson had to be taught a lesson.

Johnson Hurries
Urges Quick Marriage

Farrell could scarcely conceal his surprise at Raquel's change in attitude toward him. She was willing to be seen openly with him, to let the whole town know he found favor in her eyes. She even clung to his arm as they passed along the main street, bathing him, indulging in happy raillery.

The touch of her was like quicksilver in his veins. His pulses leaped. Love—she was beautiful. The incarnation of that flame, exotic flower she wore in her hair. Did she love him? Was she going to throw Johnson over—for him?

Raquel dismissed Farrell at the corner of the lane leading to the Johnson shack. The pain of her frank admiration for Farrell must have traveled fast. Already it had brought Johnson to the hut, fuming over her return.

"Why the hurry?" she asked. "The stone house isn't even started."

"I don't want to be married —now," Raquel said petulantly. "We'll wait till the house is finished."

Johnson's brows drew so low that his eyes were two surly wells of thwarted hope.

"All right," he growled. "But you got to cut out Farrell. You got to promise you'll never see him again."

The Beauty Box

—By HELEN FOLLETT—

Swollen tissues under the eyes do not always signify physical disorders. They are sometimes an inheritance. If they are here today and gone tomorrow, they may be due to fatigue, late hours, lack of sleep, worry or lack of exercise, when good viands are offered which tone that makes the tummy groan and go on strike. Temporary treatment consists of using plenty of hot water, drying on cold, and laving the eyes gently with iced witch hazel.

Fruitful ladies used to wage beauty parties at night. More than one hostess, suspecting indigestion, with the best thought he was going upon his wife's dead body. The new beauty mask is wired for an electric current. It is worn only an hour, and it stimulates circulation and causes the complexion to clear up properly, throwing off its waste products more actively.

There are four avenues of elimination of body wastes, the skin, the lungs, the kidneys and the intestines. They should all do their work actively if health is to be top-type, eyes bright, the skin clear and of beautiful texture, the brain alert and the step zippy. Drink plenty of water, eat plenty of fruit, breathe in plenty of fresh air, bathe daily, and avoid constipation.

When applying the makeup keep in mind that the eyes are the most interesting of the facial features. Rouge placed high, creeping up on the lids, makes the eyes brighter and fresher. It is a mistake to place factory blushes low, leaving a white space between cheek bone and eyes. The lobes of the ears should be pinked a bit.

How to Keep Well -:- By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Forward steps are being taken for improving health conditions in the United States. You can hardly take up a daily newspaper without reading the announcement of some step toward better facilities for medical and hospital care. Constantly progressive measures for health are being recommended.

The question of the cost of medical care is one of great interest at the present time. Much is being said on the subject. To the average family this is a most important factor in living costs.

Dr. Copeland

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company has been making a very interesting canvass among its industrial policy-holders in many states. It is a survey covering their expenditures for medical and other care in sickness during a period of six months in 1929.

Questionnaires were distributed by visiting nurses employed by the insurance company. These were presented to the company's policyholders chiefly workingmen's families in industrial centers in nearly every State in the Union. The questions covered just how much of the workingman's salary had to go for sickness; how much for care of the eyes and teeth; to the hospital, nurses, medicines and operations.

"1—Practically every family had to make some expenditures for medical services during this period among 3,21 families, consisting of 12,128 persons, only 198 families reported no expenditures.

"2—The total amount disbursed by all families was $230,907, an average expense of $70 per family for six months, or $140 estimated for a complete year.

"3—Private physicians received the largest share, 43 per cent of the total amount expended. One-fourth of all the money paid out went for Advice in Matters of Heart and Home

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Youth Must Have Its Fling, Especially Modern Youth

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I would like your advice very much. I have been going out with a girl for two years. We like each other very much. We are supposed to get married this summer, but I am afraid to. She was a bad girl when she was young. I love her very good. Do you think she will be wild after we are married?

WORRIED
Salem.

Dear Worried: Youth will have its fling—especially modern youth, and if your sweetheart has already stepped down under the responsibilities of the engagement, I can see no risk in the proposed marriage. She will be a better wife for having been a little foolish once.

Try to Forget Him

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm a girl of 23 and in love with a fellow that I see often, but who has never asked me out. I've been out with other fellows and don't seem to care for any of them. Please tell me how I can win his affections and make him know I care. The last time I saw him I asked him if he was keeping company with anyone and his answer was no.

ANXIOUSLY WAITING

Dear Anxiously Waiting: Yours is a typical case — of which I have plenty — the girl who always wants what she can't get. Only an extremely clever and sophisticated woman can actually "win" a man's affections without his knowing what she is up to and getting a great deal of amusement out of watching her make herself ridiculous. Forget this man and give your charms on the people who like you and find you attractive.

"In Love With Love"

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Every evening I read your wonderful column to help us girls and [illegible] I am asking you now for advice in my case. I have gone around with a fellow for four years and he and I are greatly in love with each other but when I came home a month I did not care what I saw him again. But when I [illegible] with all their fellow I can't seem to [illegible] me. I have I keep thinking of him. The other [illegible] seem to care for me a bit and I [illegible] one fellow. Please [illegible] you would choose if you were in my place. Thanking you in advance, I am,

PUZZLED
Medford.

Dear Puzzled: I think you are more "in love with love" than with any young man you know so far. If that he bores you when you are with him is a fitting proof. You take the matter too seriously. Two weeks in a very small time to decide so large a question.

Look for Older Man

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

You have helped so many other people that you can help me.

I am 18 years of age and in love with a fellow 16. I have gone out with him many times and although he says he cares for me he doesn't show it in his actions. He goes out with many other girls, many of whom I know. Is it right for me to keep this friendship of two years up? I love him very much. Kindly answer this in the paper. Thanking you in advance I am

LILLIE
Cambridge.

Dear Lillie: My advice is to meet young men your own age or older. There can be no reason for this 16-year-old boy keeping your friendship if you like, but look for a love interest in an older man.

A Puritan's Problem

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

It looks as if I must do without any friends at all or else keep on [illegible]

[illegible] DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

[illegible] going with a girl [illegible] he thought a lot [illegible] Recently [illegible] and I have [illegible] I have been [illegible] I know don't [illegible] I [illegible] me a line [illegible]

WALL ST. AGAIN GRIPPED BY DULLNESS

New York, June 3—The bulls having failed to stir up any activity in the stock market of late, left the field to the bears today, but they made even a worse showing. Practically the entire list pointed heavy, but despite rather aggressive bearish operations in spots, most issues were limited to a point or so, and during the early hours of the session trading was in the lightest volume since August, 1928, with the one exception of January 13 last.

WALL BULLING IGNORED

With practically the entire financial community now looking with some confidence for a decided revival of business in the autumn, and the market already fairly well digested, the bears found themselves able to start any general liquidation, although a substantial amount of selling appeared. Professional traders who had grown discouraged with the market's sluggishness

A substantial portion of the day's business appeared to be transactions by floor traders for their own account.

Although news was rather meager, such favorable developments as came to hand were ignored. The decision of the Supreme Court, denying the Interstate Commerce Commission authority to impose freight rates under the Hoch Smith resolution which might be construed as likely to cause a flutter in the rail stocks, although in some circles this decision is rated more bearish than the St. Louis and O Fallon case.

UTILITIES NEGLECTED

The Department of Commerce estimated sales of radio equipment for the year at $645,000,000, against $90,000,000 in 1929, but the Radio shares generally sagged.

The United States Geological survey's estimate of April electrical power production appeared just a per cent above March, although in recent years, the seasonal trend from March to April has run a decline of about 4 per cent. The utility shares, however, were neglected.

Credit rates remained stationary and call and time money were unusually dull, but bankers' acceptances and commercial paper were fairly active. The weekly condition statement of Federal Reserve reporting member banks showed a drop of $61,000,000 in commercial loans, but an unexpected increase of $99,000,000 in loans on securities. This gain could not be counted by stock market activity, and it was felt in some circles that it may indicate loans against new bond issues are being held off the market until after the reparation loan is floated.

A few shares sagged about 4 points or more, including Auburn, Ingersoll Rand, Canadian Pacific, Ir Reduction and American Tobacco B. The Continental Baking issue were weak, reaching new lows for the year. Curtiss Wright also sagged a little to record a new 1930 low.

Such issues as U. S. Steel, Radio Westinghouse Electric, American Can, and General Electric lost a point or two.

McKeesport Tinplate was again a strong feature, running to a new high for the year. Colorado Fuel and Republic Steel continued to post good dealings, and there was special buying in the Armour issues. Amerada rose a couple of points, reflecting merger gossip.

The late market was subjected to steady drive of selling that ended ultimately forced U. S. Steel down more than 2 points, Johnsonville & and Worthington Pump, J. I. Case snapped back several points from its forenoon low of 268. The close was heavy.

Newton Calls for $650,000 Financing

Newton will receive bids until 1 p. m., June 4, for $650,000 school bonds dated June 3, 1930, and due $33,000 1931-1940 and $32,000 1941-1950. Bonds are callable 1935 to 1939 inclusive are 4 per cent and 1940 to 1950 inclusive 3½ per cent. Bids must be for the whole amount and not less than par and accrued interest.

$4,500,000 Plant Expansion Planned

New York, June 3 (AP)—The American Potash and Chemical Corp. plans an expansion program in the California producing plants which will involve the expenditure of $4,500,000 and require two years to complete, any officials.

Silver Is Dropped to New Low Price

London, June 3 (AP) Silver metal touched a new low record of 23-16 pence an ounce today under weak China influences from the Far East and lack of support from any quarter.

Dollar Unquoted for First Time on Bourse in Paris

Paris, June 3 (AP)—The dollar for the first time in memory of exchange brokers was not quoted on the Bourse today. Business has been light and there were no official transactions.

The exchange committee, for purposes of settlement, however, established a rate of 25.30¾. American banks did their usual business in the dollar, but took the London and New York quotations as the standard.

NEWS OF New York Curb BOSTON Trends of the Day MARKETS

PRICES LOWER IN BOSTON DEALINGS

Prices moved lower in dull trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. Edison, after equaling its high for the year, dropped a point from its previous closing price.

Cities Service, Boston Elevated, United Shoe and American Founders each fractionally lower. United Founders and General Alloys were each down a minor fraction.

Atchison advanced 2 points. Aviation Securities Corporation dipped a point. Quincy Market held steady. Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway preferred added a point. Utilities Equities preferred dropped 1¾.

Methuen awarded to Harris, Forbes & Co., at 100.45, $50,000 4 per cent water, Town Hall, sewer, macadam and street widening bonds dated April 1, and payable 1931 to 1948. Other bidders were: R. L. Day & Co., 100.279; E. H. Rollins & Son, 100.26; F. S. Moseley & Co., 100.126, and First National-Old Colony Corp., 100.08.

De Long Hook & Eye Co. resumed dividends after a lapse of 13 years with declaration of 25 cents a share, payable June 15 to stock of record June 20. It has 10,700 shares outstanding, out of 11,000 authorized.

Tennessee Products Corp. declared initial quarterly cash dividend of 25 cents on the common and an annual stock dividend of 5 per cent on the common, both payable July 10 to stock of record July 1. Cash dividend places the stock on a $1 annual basis.

Advice Is Free

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Melson, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. All replies are made by mail direct.

WHAT IS AMOUNT?

D. D., Boston—I am a reader of your paper and need advice. What do you think of an investment in Drug, Inc.?

Ans.—Drug, Inc., organized in 1928 as a holding company, operates the largest chain drug system in the United States, Canada and England. Also it manufactures a number of widely used medicinal preparations, and recently took over assets and properties of Yick Chemical. Net in 1929 was $6.35 a share, compared with $3.50 in 1928 on a smaller capitalization. Dividends of $1 a share, quarterly, have been kept up the present stock from June, 1928. At recent levels the yield is 5 per cent. In how many shares are you interested?

SPECULATIVE STOCK

C. E., Dedham—I shall appreciate your opinion as a purchase of Austin, Nichols prior preferred "A" stock.

Ans.—An initial quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share will be paid on Austin, Nichols prior preferred "A" stock August 1. Though the company manufactures and sells widely used food products earnings have been irregular. Preliminary report for year ended April 30, 1930, indicates net profit of $212,000, as compared with net of $197,235 in the preceding year. Bank loans of $800,000 contrasts with $1,050,000 a year ago. The stock, however, is speculative.

MUST KNOW FACTS

Miss A. W., Brighton.—Please give information on International Telephone & Telegraph and your opinion of a purchase of the stock.

Ans.—To judge what you should buy you need facts as to your circumstances. International Telephone & Telegraph operates an extensive telephone and cable system. Dividends of $6 a share annually were paid on the old stock, issued in three-for-one split, May, 1929, is $2 a share. In 1929 earnings of $3.03 a share contrasted with $3.42 in 1928, $3.89 in 1927 and $4.04 in 1926.

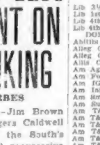
COUNTRY LESS DEPENDENT ON N. Y. BANKING

By B. C. FORBES

New York, June 3—Jim Brown of Louisville and Rogers Caldwell of Nashville, two of the South's most enterprising and progressive financiers, announce the wedding of interests which gives them control of 20 Southern banks and 16 insurance companies having a combined assets of $615,000,000.

This illustrates an interesting and desirable—revolutionary now under way throughout the country, a revolution which will tend to make every section more independent of Wall Street in the future than in the past when confronted with large-scale banking and financing projects.



B. C. Forbes

* * *

Just as the drift has been toward greater and greater reliance upon Manhattan in matters political, so the country was threatened with a stronger and stronger drift toward Wall Street in matters financial. Whenever any big amount of capital had to be raised in any part of the country, recourse was had to New York. The two main reasons for this were, first, that New York had almost a monopoly of the machinery and means for supplying funds in many-million quantities, and, second, that banks are in most other sections had neither sufficient money available for such purposes nor the facilities or experience to conduct the operation.

Now huge financial institutions are being brought into being, usually through consolidation, in many parts of the continent. Not only is but with the means has come the will to undertake financial deals on a scale never before contemplated.

* * *

This creation of powerful financial institutions, and groups of institutions, is distinctly healthy, since it will enable the rest of the country to function more independently of Wall Street. The new condition is wholesome in Wall Street's own long-range interest.

Nothing could be more undesirable from every point of view—industrial, financial, social, political—than the complete domination of banking and financing throughout every corner of the country by Wall Street interests. It would breed acute discontent. It would militate against the springing up of financial giants throughout the land. It would not facilitate the soundest expansion of enterprise at points far distant from the financial metropolis.

The whole economic ground-swell being toward bigness, there is not the slightest danger that the evolution which has set in will deprive the gigantic banking and investment organizations in Wall Street of a generous share of the total business. There will continue to be occasion for capital issues and other banking operations on a scale swingable only by the strongest financial houses in New York.

* * *

The Brown-Caldwell announcement, from Louisville, reads:

Rogers Caldwell, president of Caldwell & Co., Nashville investment bankers, and James B. Brown, president of the Bankers Kentucky Co., announce that Banco-Kentucky has acquired a half interest in Caldwell & Co., and that Rogers Caldwell has acquired a substantial interest in Banco-Kentucky, creating a financial structure controlling banks and insurance companies with combined assets of $615,000,000."

* * *

California has its Transamerica Corporation, the child of A. P. Giannini, controlling resources of over $2,500,000,000. Chicago has its billion dollar Continental Illinois Bank and Mel Traylor's half-billion First National Bank. Boston has its First National Bank-Old Colony Trust group, with resources exceeding $875,000,000. Detroit has its Detroit Bankers' Company, which, with its affiliations, appurtenances the billion-dollar class, and the metropolis of motordom also has the Guardian Detroit Union group of more than half-billion magnitude. Buffalo has the Marine-Midland Corporation. Minneapolis has its Northwest Bancorporation, and it shares with St. Paul the First Bank Stock Corporation, each near the billion class.

Philadelphia, Cleveland, Milwaukee, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, Syracuse, Tulsa, Seattle, Kansas City, Portland, Ore., and Savannah, Ga., are among other cities now possessing financial institutions of outstanding magnitude.

* * *

The more self-sustaining every part of the country becomes financially, the sounder and safer it should be our national growth and progress.

Dougherty Playboys on Norumbega Dim

Norumbega Park's Totem Pole ballroom held a large gathering last night as Emory Dougherty and his Playboys supplied dreamy and melodies. Dougherty, once known as "the bouncing drummer," comes to Totem Pole ballroom from the Arena City Auditorium and will hold forth every night this week, with afternoon and evening concerts on Sundays.

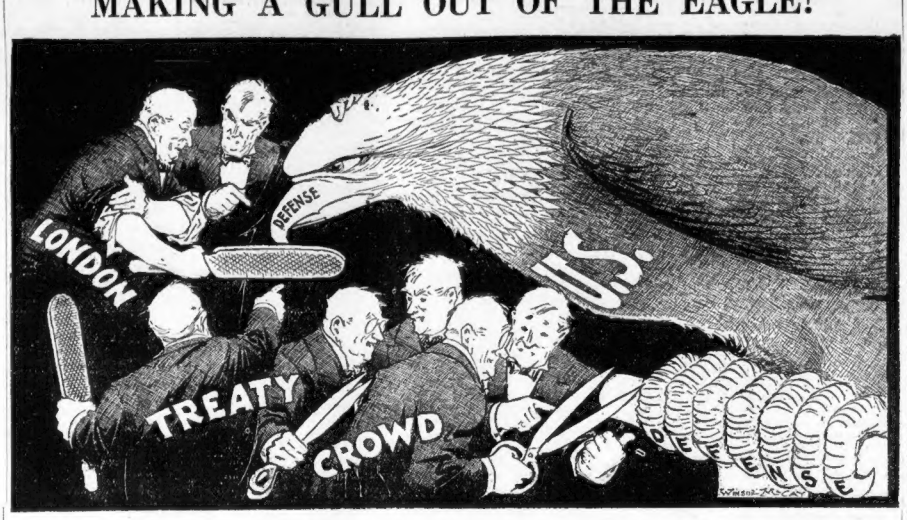
BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

MAKING A GULL OUT OF THE EAGLE!



The primary function of the American Navy is the protection of American sea-borne commerce. Such it has been since the founding of the Republic. Such it will be so long as real Americans guide the destinies of this nation.

At the behest of the Internationalists the London Treaty crowd are prepared to blunt the beak and clip the claws and shear the wings of the American Eagle. Twenty-two out of twenty-three of the U. S. Navy High Command, say so and warn the nation of the DANGERS involved.

Some Things the Naval Treaty Will Not Do

Senator Johnson Exposes False Pretenses

Two of the false pretenses under which the administration is attempting to peddle the London naval treaty to the American people is that it will relieve "the crushing burden of taxation" and definitely limit all naval armaments.

Senator Johnson of California has knocked into "a cocked hat" both of these counterfeit selling-talks by citing the undisputed testimony before the Committee on Foreign Relations to show that the treaty will do neither. Says Senator Johnson:

"If the United States builds up under the treaty —and this must be done to make it effectual—it will cost this nation one billion and seventy-one million dollars.

"What nonsense, therefore, it is to talk of relieving our people from taxation!

"Likewise there is no real limitation. Under the so-called 'escalator clause' the treaty provides that any party to it, believing its national security demands it, because of new construction by any other power, may build additional war vessels.

"Let the American people understand adherence to the London treaty means, if we act upon it, American taxpayers will pay over a billion dollars; the American Navy must be constructed under British specifications; and if a party to the treaty increases its war vessels, as it has a right to do, America, to keep pace, must follow and build in like fashion."

In the light of these facts it is impossible for the Senate to advise and consent to the ratification of this treaty upon the ground that it either reduces the cost or limits the size of naval armaments.

What the London treaty really does is to reduce the effectiveness of the American Navy by limiting the freedom of the American Congress to provide and maintain the type of navy which the highest American naval authorities declare to be best suited to the protection of American commerce and the defense of American territory.

"To Hell With War"

A British General's Suggestion

Brigadier-General F. P. Crozier, C. B., C. M. G., D. S. O., of the British Army, writes a book about war, much criticized by loyal Britons.

It is entitled "A Brass Hat in No Man's Land." It mentions murder, cowardice, desertion, rape, graft and other incidents of war. It shocks stay-at-home patriots who thought these things happened only in the GERMAN army.

General Crozier defends his book, saying:

"Why should I, knowing what I know about war, keep my mouth shut and my pen dry, and not warn the rising generation of the danger? Be it remembered that most of the critics who refute the idea that war is revolting never went to battle themselves."

Something of that sort has been heard before from young soldiers in the ranks, but seldom from a general officer. Our own Sherman, who said war was hell, hinted at it.

"To hell with your old ideas. To hell with war-makers and peace-breakers. To hell with war."

Dollar Books

Through Mass Production

Inspired, perhaps, by the ancient wheeze, "I'd give her a book but she's got a book," four New York publishers intend to change all that and to make reading popular. They will market books at a dollar a volume, profit by larger sales.

Many have wondered how long it would take publishers to wake up to the lesson of mass production that other industries learned long ago. They might have looked at the automobile industry, for example.

Making and selling books is not quite as simple as making and selling automobiles. Europe succeeds in making and selling them, however, at a fraction of the cost here. Perhaps because Europeans prefer reading to motoring.

In America motoring comes first, but many will read if prices are right, the product is advertised and culture becomes "smart."

A Mother on Flying

An Idea for the Schools

A New England mother, with the pioneering spirit of her ancestors, sends in the suggestion that aviation should be taught in the high and primary schools.

Fatal accidents disquiet her, but she recognizes that "we all in a short time will have to become air-minded. Mothers as well as fathers might as well face the problem because the younger generation are not going to be contented with running autos on the ground. There was deep opposition to the railroads at first here in New England."

Brave lady, you will be interested to know that the latest records from Washington show that, as in the case of the railroads, the number of accidents per mile flown has steadily diminished.

In this age of industry and economics, an elemental knowledge of flying could well displace the brain space now occupied by cubistic and futuristic flapdoodle.

Elected

Unanimously

Out in Oregon, Chris Peterson and his wife, Elvina, ran for the office of Republican precinct committeeman in the town of East Dallas. The race was a tie.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

A Love Song

Do you wonder, sometimes, if there's any real love left in the world—love that is brave and beautiful and gallant and sweet? Then read this:

It's a true story. It came written on cheap paper in a round, girlish hand that is still "only eighteen years old." And she used no fine flourishes in telling her simple tale.

Elsie Robinson

A year ago last March she and the boy were married. Shortly after the boy lost his job. To make matters worse, they found they were to have a baby. A job was offered in Lockport, Illinois, but they were stuck in Pennsylvania. They had no friends or money. His people had disowned him when he married this seventeen-year-old child. Her folks were too poor to give them carfare. So, they hit the highway.

Remember that cold spell we had in the late Spring last year? That cold got at them. Their clothes were in rags. They could buy food only once in a while. Occasionally they'd pick up an odd job in some town, stay a few days, then go on. It was rough traveling.

Every now and then they'd have to stop, she was too weary to go on. And the boy would stand desperate, watching her, wondering how they were ever going to get out of it all. But at last they made it. Reached the job—and she could rest.

But five months later twin baby boys were born—moved a little—died. She thought then that she'd never be able to go on. But presently, through the mists, she saw that other young face—haggard and hurt as her own—her husband's. And somehow smiled—and kissed.

And now she's glad. For the boy has a job. They've a little home started. And there's another boy on the way.

"And this one will live—I know it will live, Elsie!" she writes. "I'm so happy. But isn't it strange the way some people look at things? Last week a friend of mine, who had heard my story, said to me: 'You sure had a wonderful sense of duty! IMAGINE, SHE CALLED LOVE SUCH A COMMON NAME AS DUTY! I told her it was love, not duty, that made me do it. But she said love was the bunk. Is it, Elsie?

"You write for newspapers and you must know a lot more about life than I do . . . do you really think love is the bunk? And that we just do things for duty? I don't believe it. And whether it is or not, I'd go through everything again for my husband—and still call it love. We've been through plenty —but it was worth it as long as we had each other."

So you sometimes grow sick of the squabbling and bickering, the scandal and divorces, and wish, so sadly, that something might happen to bring back the old dreams again? Then, remember this girl who bravely walked the trail of pain and poverty and death and thought it all worth while—"as long as we had each other."

Our Leading Sports

By ARTHUR BAER

Nobody seems to know why perjury and bribery are our leading indoor sports. Every day you see by the papers that another prominent citizen has followed the path of glory that leads to getting arrested for picking a kangaroo's pouch.

You cannot expect the noise commission to stop the rackets. It is the general consensus of guesses that malfeasance in office starts in the corridor.

The lobbyists who fester the halls of administration and justice are not there for Uncle Gougly's hammock stories. And even when a man has sworn to be the servant of the people you cannot blame him for wanting Thursday night out.

So many rumors and so little verification still make you as suspicious as you would be of a bank where the cashier keeps his hat on all the time.

We know it seems all right in manner and appearance. But there is nothing in the world that looks squarer than loaded dice.

The reason why we have wired ourself for this tremendous squawk is that the wrong boys are getting it.

Bribery seems to be an all-year-round sport and can be played either in swallowtails or golf clothes. We have an inkling on what the well-dressed perjurer will wear this summer and you can expect to find us up in the king row when the ugly charges are making faces at each other.

If we can grab a million we don't want a friend on the jury. We'll make friends with 'em during the trial.

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

Budding is widespread among sea-anemones, jelly-fish, sea-squirts and a number of other invertebrate.

Even when sexless reproduction has been abandoned by the adult, as in all the higher animals, it may persist unsuspected in early stages of life.

Generally, every fertilized egg means a new individual, and if two or more individuals appear at a birth, then two or more eggs were fertilized.

H. G. Wells

The triplets, quartets, quintets and so forth of cats or rabbits arise from groups of separate eggs, three, four, five and so on in number. But there are exceptions. In the Texas armadillo, whose bony carapaces are so often made into baskets to tempt the tourist, four young are always born at birth, and they are peculiar in sharing a common set of embryonic membranes.

These quadruplets are produced by the early division into four parts of a single fertilized egg. Similarly all the cases of human identical twins, or twins which are so closely alike as to cause confusion, are due to the splitting of a single embryo at a very early stage.

This splitting is, in a perfectly legitimate sense, sexless reproduction. In some parasitic insects this budding of the ovum occurs on a grander scale. Only one egg is laid in the destined victim of the parasite.

This divides not into two or four, but into hundreds of cell-masses, from each one of which a whole insect eventually grows.

A very peculiar form of sexless reproduction is found in many sponges. Sponges possess large numbers of wandering cells, not unlike our own white blood corpuscles.

A number of these collect together in one spot, much as our white corpuscles collect where there is inflammation. However, their function is not defense against intruders, but reproduction, and they have previously accumulated food-stores within themselves.

They pack themselves close, and are then sealed up by other cells in a protective case. In a single sponge there may be a multitude of these agglomerations.

When the parent sponge dies down under stress of bad weather or other discouraging conditions these gemmules, as they are called, fall to the bottom; when conditions are favorable again they burst their case and develop into new sponges.

The interesting fact about these gemmules is that they do not originate at a single centre of development, but are built out of scattered cells which come together from different parts of the body.

Plants, from the lowest to the highest, possess the most varied methods of sexless reproduction.

The thread-algae and most fungi through the major part of their life history, consists of a feltwork of filaments, any bit of which may become detached and continue the race.

So with many flowering plants which have creeping underground stems: they send up shoots at intervals, and any one of these, if detached from the rest, can lay claim to be a newly reproduced plant.

The strawberry grows new plants at the end of its runners; poplars and many other trees send out suckers from their roots, each of which can grow into a whole new tree.

The banyan tree lets fall new shoots from its branches each of which, on touching the ground takes root and becomes a new stem, so that a many-trunked tree, a grove in itself, is produced.

Capital Silhouettes

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

THE GRAND MARSHAL of the Washington G. A. R. parade who made President Hoover cool his heels and wait looks to us like a fine piece of senatorial timber.

* * *

CHAIRMAN CARAWAY issues a scathing denunciation of the lobbyists, and as we sadly recall the good old days that are no more, they don't seem to be popular around Washington any more, now that terrapin and champagne have gone out of style.

SENATOR GEORGE MOSES talks of meeting possible European tariff retaliation with an embargo on American goods, but as we remember our history, Boston once saw the grass growing on her docks in consequence of a law like that and ardently desires no encores.

IT PROBABLY isn't that they love their country less but Joe Robinson more that induces those Senate Democrats to hesitate about surrendering our naval equality with England. It's pretty tough to have to choose between being true to Joe or being true to Sam.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

New York, June 3—Beer drinkers who deserted the Yorkville braustuberls to dally with the Hoboken brew have drifted back again and Yorkville is merry with the table tapping of seidels and lilt of German song. The section is in the East Eighties and is wide open.

Yorkville for years has been a German district, and before prohibition was the home of innumerable workers employed in the various breweries abounding there. With the national drought, Yorkville life seemed to stagnate with melancholy. Entire blocks became vacant store rooms.

Old men and their hausfraus sat about on cheerless front stoops sighing for other days. Then about two years ago came a renaissance. In one block alone there opened a dozen hofbraus and rathskellers featuring deep drinking mugs, mottoed mats and German dishes.

* * *

There were singing waiters, mechanical pianos and song leaders who led patrons in the collective singing of old songs. Broadway flocked there after the play. Then some of the places began to "needle" the beer—a process of injecting ether into prohibition brew. Those who participated in the merry evening awakened with thumping headaches and accompanying groans. Ach, du lieber! About this time Hoboken with its wide open saloons, German restaurants and the old time melodrama made its sweeping bow.

Yorkville once more suffered the pangs of engulfment. Everybody set forth to see the Christopher Morley experiment in Jersey, tank up on a foaming stein and hiss villains in "After Dark, or Neither Maid, Wife Nor Widow." Morley and his cohorts were on the way to enormous riches.

Then something happened to Hoboken, just as it often happens to pleasure haunts springing up so quickly these days. Revenue officers began to tighten up the merry making. Patrol wagons clanged through streets. So the pendulum swung back. And Yorkville got the beer guzzling crowds again.

* * *

Sign in the window of an all night mission on the Bowery: "If you must carry a chip on your shoulder get a job in a lumber yard."

* * *

* * *

Someone writes in that, outside of technical words, the longest in the American language is "honorificabilitudinity." And it does not excite us a bit although we excite easily. It sounds to us like radio static any way.

* * *

The man with the largest vocabulary of anyone in New York is said to be Walter Lippmann, an editorial writer. Woodrow Wilson when alive held the distinction.

* * *

Fashionable tailors whose minds seems to fall naturally into folds of obese optimism predict winter will mark a reversal of the dark coat with stripped trousers. The new combination will be a light coat and dark trousers. Bully news for the spot cleaners. But bad for the soup dribblers.

* * *

One of the largest Fifth avenue ground floor corner rooms has been taken over by a florist—making 14 flower shops on that thoroughfare and a fellow, I suppose, is pretty destitute for writing material when he walks along like a ninny adding up florist shops.

* * *

The most hilarious situation in any musical show to my notion is when Bert Lahr is whirled about in a revolving machine for a flying test. When it is stopped a pencil is held up before him. He is asked what it is.

* * *

* * *

"You are going to keep on hailing motor cycle cops," writes J. H., "until one yanks you by the arm out of that wrathful you ride around in for a nice smacking."
